PHONE MEN YIELD; MORE DEMANDED

Large Concessions Made Yesterday Will Not Prevent Hot Fight Against Ordinance.

CONTEST IN THE COUNCIL.

Company to Let the City Name Licensee When Franchise Expires, and Also Gives Schools Low Rate.

The Chicago Telephone company made an important concession yesterday, but the opponents of the ordinance are far from satisfied and the prospect is for a pretty contest in the council. The phone company agreed during the day that a clause could be inserted in its franchise extension ordinance allowing the city to name a licensee who could purchase its property at the end of the term.

It agreed, also, to give the board of education special rates for telephone service between the board rooms and its schools, but it did not go so far as the board wishes in the way of putting it on the same footing as the fire and police departments.

The universal toll service it still refuses. This question has become more than ordinarily interesting on account of the fact that the long distance company with which the Chicago Telephone company works has just raised its rates and the only relief Chicago users can get is to have access to the independent outside companies.

A plan of council campaign for the ordinance was also announced. No further meetings of the gas, oil, and electric light committees will be held, but the ordinance will be introduced in the council tomorrow evening in its present form. At the same time Chairman Young will put in an amendment providing for the licensee clause. He will also present one allowing the board of education a free switchboard in its rooms, but if phones are to be installed in the schools they must be paid for at the special rate.

Fight in Council Expected.

It was stated no attempt will be made to pass the ordinance at the following council meeting, the one of Sept. 9. A special meeting, either the following Wednesday or Thursday, will be asked to take it up. If it fails to pass then no attempt will be made to put it through at the next regular meeting, Sept. 16. That would be the night before the charter election, and even a telephone company acknowledges the futility of such a move.

It must not be thought these concessions and modifications in the ordinance are going to stop one of the prettiest council fights known for years. The opponents of the ordinance still are unsatisfied. They want more. Ald. Snow said if Chairman Young did not call another meeting of the committee he would, and while acknowledging such a thing never had been done before in Chicago's legislative history he gave legal authority for it. Altogether the promise is for two and perhaps more extremely interesting council meetings.

Demands of the Minority.

Three things the minority of the committee still insists on. It wants:

Universal toll system, so that a Chicagoan can use either the Bell or the independent companies for long distance connections.

An in as well as an out wire for flat rate telephones.

A private system of communication between the schools and the board of education, the same as between the headquarters of the police and fire departments and their stations.

The Bell Telephone company, which owns 52 per cent of the stock of the Chicago Telephone company, drew added attention to the universal toll demand. The American Telephone and Telegraph company, which is another of its subsidiary companies and controls the long distance service, advanced the cost of long distance messages about 40 per cent. It made the night rate the same as the day one, and a great deal of long distance telephoning is done after 6 o'clock in the evening.

Wants to Avoid Extortion.

"The only way to avoid this extortion," said Ald. Snow, "is to insert in the ordinance a clause allowing the independent companies to connect with the wires of the Chicago Telephone company. We could not reach New York over these independent lines, but we could reach St. Louis, Peoria, Springfield, and a lot of important points not only in Illinois but in Indiana, Wisconsin, and adjoining states with which the average Chicago business man really has more business than with New York or Boston.

"Minneapolis, St. Louis, and other cities which have access to the lines of the independent companies get long distance service at about 75 per cent of what Chicagoans have to pay, and there is no reason why we should not be put on the same footing. The cry that there are mechanical difficulties in the way is nonsense. There is no mechanical trouble in the way, only the desire of the Chicago Telephone company to preserve all the business for its business partner."

Young to Offer Amendments.

In announcing the concessions the telephone company was willing to make to secure the passage of the ordinance, Ald. Young gave out this statement:

"In my opinion a provision should be inserted in the ordinance giving the city the right to name a licensee, who shall be authorized to purchase the property of the Chicago Telephone company at the end of the grant, in case a further extension is not made at that time to such company. In making the report of the committee I shall present such an amendment for the consideration of the council.

Corporation Still Liable.

"An amendment providing for such telephone service, without cost, as seems necessary to meet the needs of the board of education in its offices appears desirable and not unreasonable, and I will present such an amendment. Some time ago the Chicago Telephone company offered to install a switchboard in the offices of the board of education and to connect it with a telephone in each public school, to be used between the board of education and the schools only, at the rate of $50 a year for a single line or $45 a year for a two party line, with unlimited service. This proposition is still open to the board of education."

Opposed to Further Hearings.

As to another meeting of the committee to consider other objections to the ordinance Chairman Young said:

"All objections recently raised to the ordinance have been before the committee and

HALL HAD JUST $6 TO GET AWAY ON.

But Actor Clement Borrowed Some More and Started with Him for Canada.

ON VERGE OF BREAKDOWN

Vice President Hitchcock of First National Bank Thought to Have Gone to See Absent Man.

Dismayed by the chaotic condition of his financial affairs, and on the verge of a physical breakdown, Jesse E. Hall, president of the Belding-Hall Manufacturing company is on the other side of the Canadian border awaiting the result of the investigation now being made by the company's creditors.

The details of Mr. Hall's sudden departure from Chicago previous to the present investigation became known yesterday for the first time, when friends of Mr. Hall admitted that his "vacation" was taken because of his financial difficulties.

"He was in such a mental state that he hardly knew what he was doing," said one friend of the corporation head, who saw him a few hours before his departure from Chicago. "He suddenly found that his debts were such that he could not meet them, or thought that he couldn't, and he got on a train and went away. His only idea was to escape from the constant strain of meeting his creditors. He took no money with him, although he might easily have done so had he desired."

Tires Under Strain; Decides to Leave.

Saturday morning, Aug. 24, Mr. Hall met his old friend, Clay Clement, the actor. He was worried and he showed it physically and in his remarks.

"I am tired of being pestered to death by creditors and I am going away," said Mr. Hall.

"Why, that is unnecessary. Everything will be all right," said Mr. Clement, who, like many of Mr. Hall's friends, believed him to be a millionaire.

"No, I can't remain here any longer," insisted Mr. Hall. "I am all worn out."

There were some other remarks and then Mr. Hall suddenly returned to financial matters.

"I've got just $6 with me," said the reputed millionaire, exhibiting that sum of money.

"In that case you will need money wherever you are going, unless you are going to die," suggested Mr. Clement. "How soon are you going to leave Chicago?"

"Within two hours," was the reply. "I am going north."

In his haste to get the required amount of money immediately Mr. Clement borrowed it, giving some personal effects as security. He then returned to Mr. Hall and gave him the money, the exact amount of which is not known.

Actor Accompanies Hall.

Worried about the despondent condition of his friend, Mr. Clement, who had been planning to go to New York, suggested that he accompany him a part of the way on his journey north. This Mr. Hall agreed to and together they traveled to Detroit, Mich.

At Detroit tie two men parted, Mr. Hall continuing on his northward journey toward the Canadian border and Mr. Clement turning east to New York.

A few days ago H. H. Hitchcock, vice president of the First National bank, and a close friend as well as a creditor of Mr. Hall, went north also. Members of Mr. Hitchcock's family said that they believed he was in Minneapolis. Persons familiar with the affairs of the Belding-Hall company and its president, however, said that it was more than likely that he was with Mr. Hall or in close touch with him. Mr. Hitchcock left word in Chicago that he would not return to the city for ten days.

Owes Banker-Friend Big Sum.

Mr. Hitchcock has been a close friend of Mr. Hall for years and it is said that the personal indebtedness of Mr. Hall to the bank official is about $150,000. He owes the bank, it was said yesterday, slightly more than that sum.

In Debt to Stenographer.

Among the small creditors of Mr. Hall is Miss Susie B. Cornell, who for thirteen years was employed by him as a stenographer. Miss Cornell, who lives with her parents at 6221 Greenwood avenue, refused to say just what the amount of the indebtedness was, but it is understood that the sum is between $2,000 and $3,000.

"I am sure that everything is all right and that Mr. Hall's creditors all will be paid," said Miss Cornell yesterday afternoon. "The company is solvent. The whole trouble is that Mr. Hall was too generous."

The developments of the day indicated that the venture of the refrigerator manufacturer into the theatrical business when he backed "Sam Houston" was but a drop in the bucket with his other financial ventures. According to Mr. Clement, who played the title rôle in this production, Mr. Hall invested but a small sum of money in the play, doing this because he had had a hand in the writing of the play.

Hall Writer of Plays.

Mr. Hall was collaborating with Mr. Clement in writing a play at the time he left Chicago.

"While the company made no money, it cost Mr. Hall but little," said Mr. Clement yesterday afternoon. "There were others who invested money in the production of the play who lost several times the sum that he did. I, of course, lost the money which I put into it.

"Mr. Hall went into this as a recreation and not because he expected to make any money out of it.

"His fine nature was indicated by the fact that he left the city with scarcely any money when he had considerable money to his credit at the bank where he has a personal account, and that a life insurance policy, upon which he could have raised at least $2,000, was on his desk at the hour he left the office."

Besides the factory properties owned by the Belding-Hall company at Belding, the creditors' committee yesterday invoiced the company's property at Lilsen, Mich., where it owns a lumber yard and a planing mill. It is not known when the work of invoicing will be completed, probably some time during the week.

In the evening Attorney Percy Eckhart, representing the company, said that he didn't know whether the report that Mr. Hall was in Canada was correct. He said he did not know just where he was, but he thought he could reach him at any time.

Charter Foes Plan Secret Plastering of City with Big Posters.

HOIST INK DANGER SIGNALS.

Calamity Howling Type Prophesies Ruin and Dire Desolation.

Tomorrow morning the billboards of Chicago will blossom with red, yellow, and black posters about the size of the side of a small house denouncing the charter.

It was intended to keep these twenty foot "arguments" secrets until they stared citizens in the face, but THE TRIBUNE secured possession of one last night, spread it on the floor of its local room, and, standing on the center thereof, a stenographer made a copy of the red, yellow, and black diatribe.

Clear across the top sixteen feet of type—blood red—sound the following war cry:

DANGER! DANGER!

Citizens, Wake Up to Your Danger!

Right under the left hand danger signal is the following:

DO YOU WANT YOUR TAXES DOUBLED?

Under the right hand red ink red flag is this:

DO YOU WANT THE PURITANICAL SABBATH?

Then in letters ranging from three inches to a foot in height the subjoined statements and misstatements appear:

READ WHAT THE PROPOSED CHARTER MEANS FOR CHICAGO.

ART. XII., SEC. 12, P. 1, SAYS: TAXES (EXCEPT FOR BONDED INDEBTEDNESS) MAY BE FIVE PER CENT (5%).

ART. XIII., SEC. 13, P. 1, SAYS: TAXES FOR BONDED INDEBTEDNESS ONLY MAY BE FIVE PER CENT (5%).

A TOTAL POSSIBLE LOSS OF TEN PER CENT (10%).

ART. V., SEC. 5, P. 2, REVIVES ALL OLD BLUE LAWS, AND THE NEW CHARTER WILL COMPEL THE MAYOR TO ENFORCE THESE LAWS.

ART. IX., SEC. 9, P. 10, KNOCKS OUT SPECIAL BAR PERMITS FOR SOCIETIES.

ART. XII., SEC. 12, P. 4, MAKES CHARTER SUBJECT TO THE LEGISLATURE.

ART. V., SEC. 5, P. 2, MAKES ALL CITY ORDINANCES SUBJECT TO ALL EXISTING STATE LAWS (ALL BLUE LAWS) AND TO ALL LAWS TO BE HEREAFTER ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE.

THE NEW CHARTER IS A GOLD BRICK. IT DOES NOT PROVIDE FOR A GREATER CHICAGO, BUT MAKES THE LEGISLATIVE POWER OF THE CITY COUNCIL SUBJECT TO THE EXISTING GENERAL LAWS OF THE STATE AND TO SUCH LAWS AS MAY BE PASSED AFTER THE ADOPTION OF THE CHARTER.

THAT MEANS THAT THE LEGISLATURE WILL HAVE COMPLETE CONTROL OF THE AFFAIRS OF THE CITY.

THE LEGISLATURE ALSO RESERVES THE RIGHT TO REPEAL THE CHARTER, OR ANY OF ITS PROVISIONS, AT ANY TIME.

THE CITY COUNCIL SHALL NOT EVEN HAVE THE POWER TO REGULATE THE LIQUOR TRADE, ACCORDING TO THE NEEDS AND WISHES OF CHICAGO. ITS REGULATIONS ARE SUBJECT TO THE GENERAL LAWS OF THE STATE WHICH ABSOLUTELY PROHIBIT THE LIQUOR TRADE ON SUNDAY, AND DEMAND A LICENSE FEE OF NO LESS THAN $500. THAT MEANS THAT THE MAYOR WILL BE COMPELLED TO CLOSE ALL SALOONS AND POPULAR PLACES OF AMUSEMENT ON SUNDAY, AND THAT SPECIAL BAR PERMITS WILL NOT BE GRANTED TO FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

CHICAGO WILL HAVE TO OBSERVE THE PURITANICAL SABBATH AND THE ENTERTAINMENTS OF THE COMMON PEOPLE WILL BE FORBIDDEN.

UNDER THE NEW CHARTER TAXES WILL BE RAISED FROM 50 TO 80 PER CENT, AND RENTS WOULD CORRESPONDINGLY GO UP.

DON'T FAIL TO VOTE ON SEPT. 17, AND VOTE AGAINST THE CHARTER.

PERCUSSION CAP IN POCKET; MOTHER SPANKS; BOY DYING.

First Blow with Shingle Sets Off Explosive—Woman Loses Fingers and Child Is Fatally Hurt.

Cheboygan, Mich., Sept. 1.—Mrs. Fred Williams, living at Bear Point, on Crooked lake, near this city, was severely injured and her 7 year old son probably was fatally hurt today when a fulminate of mercury cap in the boy's hip pocket exploded while the mother was spanking him.

The boy had been out in a field where his father was using dynamite to blow up stumps, and had slipped one of the percussion caps which Mr. Williams was using in his pocket. He later returned to the house and his mother called him in to be punished for some childish misdemeanor.

Mrs. Williams used a shingle as the instrument of punishment. The first blow from the shingle exploded the cap in the boy's pocket and the explosion tore a large hole in his hip, from which he is believed to be dying.

The mother lost two fingers and received a number of minor cuts about her face and body.

FOUR BOYS KILL PLAYMATE.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 1.—Five boys, all about 10 years old, were committed to jail today, charged with the murder of Joseph Chikinsky, the 11 year old son of Max Chikinsky. One of the boys called Joseph a "Jew," and he called the boy a "Dutchman." A fight followed, in which Joseph was killed.

Alvin Hulteen Serves Sentence at Salvation Army Meeting.

JUDGE THERE; FEELS 'PITY.'

Now Thinks He Might Well Have Sent Boy to Jail Instead.

Alvin Hulteen of Evanston has not made up his mind whether he would rather attend Salvation army services three Sundays in succession or go to jail. He thinks either one is bad enough, but between the two, he believes perhaps he would prefer the county jail.

For disturbing Salvation army exercises he was sentenced last week by Police Magistrate J. S. Boyer to sit through the services conducted by the red coated "soldiers of the Lord" the following three Sunday evenings. He began serving his sentence last night to the thumping of a bass drum and the jangle of tambourines.

For fear Hulteen might escape the penalty by remaining away, Justice Boyer went to the meeting with him. Hulteen sat along the wall on a rear bench. He declined to join in the singing or rise and give "testimony." He even grinned at certain stages of the proceedings. Judging from his demeanor his regeneration was not accomplished.

Judge Apologizes to Army.

But if the ragtime hymns and the exhortations of the Salvationists failed to arouse religious fervor in Hulteen's breast they profoundly affected Justice Boyer, who arose in meeting and preached a little sermon, in which he half apologized to the Salvation Army for fining a "captain" and a "lieutenant" "five and costs" recently for making too much noise with their songs and prayers in the vicinity of Trolley park.

Still, after it was all over, Justice Boyer was inclined to think that he had been a trifle severe on Hulteen.

"Maybe it would have been better to send him to jail," he said. "At any rate, I shall not accompany him again. The next two services I will send a policeman with him."

Justice Boyer called early at Fountain square, in the heart of Evanston, to look up Hulteen. When he arrived four street religious services were in progress. The Free Methodists were holding forth on one corner. The Volunteers of America were preaching on another, the Zion City missionaries were exhorting at another point, and the soldiers of the Swedish Salvation Army not far away were singing "Rock of Ages" to the tune of "Baby Mine."

Judge Finally Espies Hulteen.

Justice Boyer scouted around the edges of all four crowds. At last as the Swedish Salvationists broke meeting and began moving on their "barracks" he espied Hulteen. The young man looked unhappy.

"Ah, here you are," said the magistrate cheerily.

"Yes, I am ready," said Hulteen grimly as if he half expected at any minute to hear a trapdoor fall.

So the magistrate and his prisoner went to the "barracks" together and sat through the meeting. When it was over Hulteen slunk away home as quickly as possible.

Police Break Up Zionist Meeting.

Services of the Christian Catholic Apostolic church of Zion, held on an Evanston street corner, were interrupted by the police.

G. L. Tindall, one of the preachers from Zion City, gathered about him an audience at Sherman avenue and Davis street at 8 o'clock and talked for an hour. Suddenly there was a parting in the crowd and some of the younger persons took their departure in haste. Chief Shaffer had arrived and the first interruption of the Zionist gathering took place. Mr. Tindall was ordered to discontinue his meeting because he had not obtained a permit from the city. He refused, it is said, and the chief of police left.

Mr. Tindall continued speaking, denouncing the police for interfering with religious service. As he was in the midst of a sentence somebody in the crowd observed the approaching squad of police, with Chief Shaffer at its head. Soon the others saw what might happen and there was a move to disperse. Then Mr. Tindall concluded his services and went back to Zion City, much annoyed.

BOMB JARS HOUSE OF JAMES PEASE.

Windows of Ex-Sheriff's Residence Shattered and Hole Torn in the Lawn by Explosion.

PUZZLE FOR THE POLICE.

Suspicion That Wreckers Mistook the Place for Dwelling of Bud White, the Gambler.

A dynamite bomb was exploded in the front yard of the residence of ex-Sheriff James Pease, 3212 Dover street, at 11:15 last night. It broke many windows in the house and tore a hole in the lawn. The members of the Pease family were at home in bed and none was injured.

The police have a theory that the bomb was another of the series in the dynamite war of gamblers, and was exploded in front of Mr. Pease's residence by mistake. They think it may have been meant for the residence of "Bud" White, which is a two story house similar to that of Mr. Pease, but located at 4819 Magnolia avenue, two blocks away.

Three Men Flee in Automobile.

The entire neighborhood was aroused by the noise of the explosion, and Mrs. Pease, running to a window, saw three men getting into an automobile 200 feet distant. The automobile immediately sped away.

A crowd of people began to collect at once in front of the Pease residence, and two patrolmen—Joseph C. Sullivan and Timothy Donovan—attracted by the sound of the explosion, came running from opposite directions. They at once sent in a call to the town hall police station for the patrol wagon, and in a few minutes a large force of policemen was on the scene.

Family Puzzled by the Attack.

The members of the Pease family when questioned could throw no light on the attempt to wreck the residence. Sergeant John Mason of the Town Hall station crawled under the porch near which the bomb had exploded and found the dirt and gravel torn up and pieces of the shattered window glass lying about. The lathing on the sides of the porch near where the hole had been made by the explosive showed traces of the force of the bomb. Many of the laths had been torn loose and a few had been broken by the explosive.

Neighbors told Sergeant Mason that an automobile which had stopped near the Pease residence twenty minutes before the explosion contained three men wearing straw hats, but no particular attention was paid to them.

Mrs. Pease told the police that she awakened a few minutes before the explosion and heard the automobile passing by the house. The Pease family sleep at the front of the house, the police assert, and if the attempt was made against the lives of the family the person who placed the bomb beneath the porch knew something of the habits of the Pease household and the location of their sleeping apartments.

Shock Awakens the Family.

In the house besides Mr. and Mrs. Pease were their daughter, Marguerite, and also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ahearn, who are guests of the Pease family. All were sleeping in the front part of the house. Mrs. Pease thinks the bomb was placed by men whom she saw later getting into the auto, but none of the others in the house has any theory.

Pease Takes Matter Lightly.

Mr. Pease is inclined not to take the affair seriously.

"I think the explosion was caused by a giant firecracker and not a bomb," he said. "I have no enemies that I know of, and have received no threatening letters that would support the theory of the police that a bomb was exploded by my house in an attempt to take my life.

"Members of my family and myself were asleep at the time of the explosion, which occurred at 11:15 o'clock. We all hurried downstairs to learn the cause of it. I believe a giant firecracker was set off under the porch to create alarm, merely as a joke, as I can think of no reason why my life should be sought by a man armed with a bomb."

Garage in the Rear.

In the rear of the Pease residence is a garage, and in this were A. Engstrom and E. Anderson, employed by Mr. Pease to care for his car and to do other work. They were asleep when the explosion occurred, and, though they looked out immediately after, say they saw no one running away.

In the crowd collected in front of the house were two young women who told the police they had seen two or three young men in the front yard some time before the explosion. Their recollection seemed to be indistinct, however, and the police paid little attention to their statement.

One bystander told of seeing an automobile containing three men and two women pass the corner a few minutes before the explosion and stop not far from the Pease house. It was his impression that the car was stopped to make repairs. The police think it possible that this may have been the car Mrs. Pease saw when she looked out the window.

"Bud" White's Foes Suspected.

The police after completing their investigation and listening to the statements inclined to the theory that an attempt to destroy by dynamite the residence of "Bud" White had been intended by some one who made a mistake and placed the explosive at the home of the former sheriff instead. As stated, the Pease and White residences are much alike in appearance and are but a short distance apart. Policeman John Sullivan of the Town Hall station was detailed to guard the Pease home during the night.

First Policeman on Scene.

Sullivan was the first policeman on the scene after the explosion. He said:

"I was standing on the corner of Sunnyside avenue and Clark street when I heard the explosion of the bomb. I hurried in the direction the noise came from, and at the corner of Western avenue found the porch in front of ex-Sheriff Pease's house blown to pieces. No one was near the place and I saw no one running away. I was unable to find any pieces of the exploded bomb."

Sullivan says he presumes the bomb was thrown from the sidewalk and that the man who did it miscalculated the distance and threw the explosive on the lawn instead of under the porch. No pieces of the bomb were discovered last night.

PLEA FOR WOMAN WORKERS BY STATE CLERKS' UNION.

Equal Wages for Same Tasks Demanded by First Annual Convention of New Organization.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—A minimum wage scale of $9 a week and equal pay to women for equal work were the demands of the State Clerks' association, which is holding its first annual convention here.

Seventy-five local unions were represented in the meeting, which was called to complete the organization of the federation. A constitution and bylaws were adopted, dividing the state into two districts, the first including all unions in the state outside of Chicago and the second including all bodies within that city.

Officers for the year were elected, the following men being chosen:

President—Alexander Peterson, Galesburg.
Vice president—H. A. Hansen, Joliet.
Secretary-Treasurer—Charles P. Gaede, Bloomington.
Executive board—F. G. Meise, Quincy; A. E. Klingenberg, Granite City; Miss Woodhouse Herris, J. G. Martin, Lincoln; C. D. Franta, Danville; J. V. Purcell, Collinsville; C. E. Sawyer, Alton.

A vigorous fight will be urged by the federation against certain employers who refuse to pay their women workers living wages, and the figures of the state bureau of labor will be used in the preparation for this battle.

Speeches were made by prominent officers of the National Organization of Clerks, the state and local federation of labor, and others. David Rous, secretary of the state board of labor statistics, outlined the work of the labor bureau.

He said it was now collecting figures on the number of women employed in the state and the salaries paid them, and asked for suggestions from the clerks on the matter.

Galesburg was chosen as the place for the next meeting, which will open on the second Sunday in June, next year.

SHARPER WATCH ON PHTHISIS.

Health Department Shows That Physicians Are Making Better Reports on Cases of Consumption.

Although 175 cases of tuberculosis were reported last month, compared with sixty-two cases in July, 1907, and nine in August of that year, the health department bulletin explains that the figures do not necessarily mean a marked increase in the disease, but they do show that physicians and hospitals are reporting their cases better.

Last week 59 cases of diphtheria, 51 of scarlet fever, 14 of measles, 47 of typhoid fever, 21 of whooping cough, and 31 of tuberculosis were reported to the department. This is seventeen fewer of scarlet fever and more than double the number of typhoid fever cases reported the preceding week.

The school medical inspectors will resume work tomorrow, when school opens. The health officers believe this will greatly aid in suppressing contagious diseases. Neglect of physicians to report cases will be discovered through the school inspectors.

NAME RAILROAD PROFESSOR.

E. R. Dewsnap, an Englishman, Appointed to Unique Chair in the University of Illinois.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 1.—President Edmund J. James of the University of Illinois yesterday announced the appointment of Prof. E. R. Dewsnap as professor of railroad administration and management at the University of Illinois. Prof. Dewsnap, born in England of American parents, was educated at the University of Manchester and at the Royal Technical College of Manchester. After graduation he spent considerable time studying the operation, construction, and management of railroads in the united kingdom, in France, and in Germany, and was for a time an official on an English railway. Three years ago he was brought to this country permanently by President Harper of the University of Chicago, to take charge of the railroad courses at that university.

BOAT HITS CROWDED BRIDGE.

Lake Freighter Kearsarge Smashes Into Rush Street Draw and People Are in Panic.

Crowds standing on the Rush street bridge watching excursion boats on the river were thrown into a panic shortly after 5 o'clock last evening when the large freight steamer Kearsarge of the Canada-Atlantic line crashed into the bridge, tearing away more than twenty-five feet of the sidewalk at the south draw of the bridge. Policemen prevented several persons from leaping into the water. Owing to the number of automobiles and other traffic on the bridge Night Bridgetender Edward Linbloom was unable to swing the bridge when Capt. Baxter of the Kearsarge gave him a signal to do so. The Kearsarge proceeded on her voyage.

THREE ARE THROWN FROM CARS

Evanston Man and Girl Fall from Platforms and Woman Is Victim of Quick Starting.

Three street car accidents in Evanston last evening tied up trolley service for an hour in the suburb and caused severe injuries to three persons.

The injured:

GEORGENSON, EMMA, 25 years old, 1227 Hinman avenue; severely bruised about head when car starts as she is boarding it.

LIES, KATHERINE, 22 years old, Mohawk street; head and face severely cut; falls from rear platform of a car.

ROBERTSON, EDWARD, 350 Rush street, Chicago; head and right arm severely cut and bruised; falls from rear platform of a car.

ONLY BRUISE ON ARM, BUT DIES.

Unknown Man Picked Up on Street Car Track Believed Victim of Electrocution.

With but one small bruise on his left arm, an unknown man died late last night half an hour after being taken to the Alexian hospital. He had been picked up on the street car tracks at Dayton and North avenue. It is believed that in trying to cross the tracks he stepped in front of a west bound car. The physicians think the man was electrocuted.

Train Kills a Section Hand.

Joseph Puchas, 27 years old, 533 Front street, a section hand on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, was struck by a passenger train at Kinzie and Green streets late last night and instantly killed.

Killed by Falling Downstairs.

Gabriel Peterson, 48 years old, was killed yesterday by falling downstairs at his residence, 1935 Milwaukee avenue. His neck was broken by the fall.

ORDEREDTOSCOWL AT NONUNIONISTS.

Leader Tells Men to Make Unorganized Traction Workers Wretched Today.

NO SLUGGING; JUST TALK.

'Making Marks' of 600 Employes Object of Chiefs Who Call Off Usual Parade.

Nonunion street car conductors and motormen will have their troubles today in the city. If they forget to give a transfer to a passenger who happens to be a union carpenter or teamster they probably will hear from him. If they don't stop the car at the proper corner they may find a complaint registered with the company by some union workingman's wife.

The street car men's union, backed by the federation of labor, has chosen labor day as the occasion for "making a mark" of the nonunion traction employes. The union has provided ample protection from insult for its members in the shape of a red, white, and blue badge, which every "organized" motorman or conductor will be expected to wear on his breast. The badges will be distributed this morning at the various street car barns between 4 and 7 o'clock.

It is estimated by the union leaders that there are about 600 nonunion men on the street cars. It is calculated that out of nearly 10,000 employes, these 600 ought to be conspicuous.

"We won't ask you to 'slug' the nonunion men," said T. J. Jordan, a representative of the street car men's union, in giving instructions to the federation of labor delegates. "All we want you to do is to talk to them—give them a good, strong talk. If you start to pay your fare on a car and find that the conductor hasn't got a union badge on, first scowl at him. Then invite him to join the union. If he doesn't want to join, tell him what you think of him."

No Big Parade; Try "Home" Plan.

Aside from the usual number of picnics and entertainments given by local unions and labor councils, labor's annual holiday will be totally unlike events of past years. There will be no big parade—for the first time in a decade. Instead the workers will try the "stay at home" plan advocated by President John Fitzpatrick of the federation of labor.

At South Chicago the principal demonstration in this vicinity will be held. Following a parade under the auspices of the South Chicago Trade and Labor assembly a demonstration with speechmaking on industrial subjects is scheduled to take place. It is expected that about 5,000 marchers will be in the parade.

A Labor day celebration at which William E. Mason, former United States senator, and Chief Justice Harry Olsen of the Municipal court will make addresses has been arranged by the citizens of West Pullman.

Among the labor organizations which will hold picnics are the Building Material Trades' council, the joint local unions of cigarmakers, the cloth cap and hat makers' union, and the steam engineers' union. Many prominent Chicago labor leaders will go to other towns in the state, where they will deliver labor day addresses.

Old Officers Renominated.

Practically all the old officers of the federation of labor were renominated without opposition for another term at the meeting yesterday. Those who are certain of reelection include President John Fitzpatrick, Secretary Edward Nockels, Financial Secretary Fred G. Hopp, and Sergeant at Arms Charles Asmussen. Margaret Haley again led the list of nominations for the legislative committee. There are eighteen candidates for places on the executive board and on various committees. The election will occur a week from next Sunday.

The federation called upon congress to pass a bill regulating the operation of private detective agencies. The fight against the new charter also was renewed, a call being made for 100 speakers to address union meetings between now and Sept. 17.

PASTOR OF BAPTIST CHURCH PRAISES THE LABOR UNIONS.

The Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton Tells of Victories Which Have Been Achieved by Organized Toilers.

Labor unions were commended in unmistakable language yesterday morning by the Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton, pastor of Lexington Avenue Baptist church, in his annual labor day sermon.

"If I were a wage worker," the pastor said, "I would join the union of my craft.

"Wonderfully has labor wrought. Mighty have been her victories. We rejoice at the relief that has been so dearly bought. And of course we know that these victories would have been impossible without the labor unions. These organizations have marched like the companies of a great army and have fought for noble prizes, many of which they now possess.

"Shame on the church and the minister who is indifferent to the toilers of the world, that is dull to the visions of the workers, and who does not share in the victories already achieved and for which the toilers now contend."

In Immanuel Baptist church the Rev. Johnston Myers predicted a social revolution and said the church should be a pioneer in advocating—

Absolute control by the government of all public necessities.

The regulation of all estates by the government, so that it shall be impossible for an estate to pass to the third generation.

Legislation which shall make large landed ownership impossible.

Abundant provisions by pensions for widows, aged, and every condition of helplessness.

"There are two hindrances in progress toward a better social condition," he continued. "One is the fact that the labor unions and the reform parties are under the domination of selfish, unreasonable leaders. They repel thoughtful people. The other hindrance is the fact that the church has been afraid to denounce injustice, because we have been supported by men in positions of wealth and power."

OPEN BIG BOSTON SYNAGOGUE.

Rapid Increase of Jewish Population in City Indicated by Dedication of $500,000 Temple.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—An index to the rapid increase in the Jewish population of Boston was the dedication today of a new $500,000 synagogue, located in the Fenway, in the midst of what is fast becoming the quarter of wealth and aristocracy. The present Hebrew population of the city is about 75,000. The Rev. Edward Everett Hale made one of the dedicatory addresses at the new synagogue.

PARKER IS OUT OF POLITICS.

Denies Report He Aspires to Democratic Presidential Nomination—Wants No Public Office.

Portland, Me., Sept. 1.—In an interview given out tonight Alton B. Parker of New York declared he has no desire ever again to hold public office, and that in this respect his views have not changed since his defeat for the presidency in 1904. Judge Parker said:

"I saw in a Boston newspaper that Gov. Campbell of Ohio said he had verified in New York the fact that I am possessed of the conviction that I shall again be nominated for the presidency.

"Nevertheless I do not believe that he ever said so. In any event he did not verify any such fact, nor could he, for it is not true."

WHAT CHICAGO'S PROPOSED CHARTER MEANS.

Extension of the License System to Bring In Added Revenue.

[The following is the eighth of a series of articles covering the most important features of the proposed charter, which has been written especially for THE TRIBUNE by Prof. C. E. Merriam, chairman of the charter committee on revenue and taxation, and a member of the subcommittee on the charter draft.]

BY PROF. C. E. MERRIAM.

NO. 8.—MISCELLANEOUS REVENUE.

ASIDE from the provisions already considered, there are several important sections of the charter dealing with the subject of revenue. The city council is authorized to impose a license tax upon any trade or business carried on wholly or in part within the city limits. At the present time the council has power to license only the enumerated list of occupations. This list at the time the law was passed in 1872 was thought to cover all occupations which it might be desired to tax; but thirty years' development has made changes necessary. It was deemed wiser, on the whole, to grant to the council power to license any trade or business than to attempt to specify particular trades or businesses, since it is impossible to foresee what occupations it may, in the future, be desirable to license. This is particularly important, since the courts have held that where a list of occupations is enumerated in the charter, occupations unenumerated are intended to be excluded. Under this interpretation of the law an occupation not specifically mentioned in the charter may not be licensed by the city council.

A general policy of licensing all trades and businesses is not contemplated, and probably would not be wise, since such taxes are frequently burdensome and vexatious in their operation. But the vesting of authority to select particular occupations from time to time is frequently found in recent charters, and was wisely placed in the proposed charter for this city.

The city council is also authorized, as has already been noted, to impose a tax upon all wheeled vehicles used upon the streets, with the requirement that the net proceeds of any such tax shall be applied exclusively to the repair and improvement of the streets. This opens up a new source of revenue for the city, and makes possible the special taxation of vehicles which are destructive of the pavements. If such a tax is imposed and carefully administered it should provide a fund sufficient to keep in good repair the streets of Chicago which are now suffered to fall into decay.

An attempt was made in the charter convention to secure a system of city assessment of taxes as authorized in the charter amendment, but this was defeated by the convention. Provision was also made in the charter bill for the collection of compensation for the use of subsidewalk space. This section was stricken out by the legislature, and does not appear in the proposed charter. The city does possess, however, the power to exact compensation for the use of space more than twelve feet above the level surface of streets.

It must be recognized by every student of the subject that the provisions of the charter regarding taxation were complicated by the general confusion of the whole taxation system. The charter convention could do nothing with the personal property tax, for example, since this is required by the constitution of the state. Nor could it make any other step in the direction of the reorganization of the general taxing system, since this fell outside of its jurisdiction.

A satisfactory readjustment of the revenue situation cannot be made until a state tax commission has been appointed to investigate the subject of local taxation, and until the state legislature has enacted remedial legislation based upon the facts and conclusions supplied by this study. Other states, such as New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, have made rapid strides in the readjustment of their revenue situations. Illinois still lags behind, and in this respect Chicago must suffer with the rest of the state.

In summing up now the financial benefits of the new charter we find, in the first place, a saving of some $60,000 a year in the spreading of the consolidated city tax by the county clerk; through the special assessment provisions, authorizing the city to appropriate money to cover defaults in bonds, a saving estimated at $1,000,000 a year; through the power of the city, if it is necessary, to perform the work of local improvements by direct labor instead of by contract, an indefinite amount; the saving to the property owner of one-half of the cost of street improvements after the new system is instituted; a saving of $200,000 to $250,000 a year now expended in interest on loans made in anticipation of incoming revenues; an indefinite sum that might be saved if the city were in a financial condition to discount its numerous bills and to obtain favorable prices, such as a good customer may secure.

The increased expenditure for municipal services and other public improvements will also unquestionably add greatly to the value of real estate by making the city a more attractive and desirable place for residence, and will likewise contribute to the general business prosperity of the city. When these conditions are weighed against the increase in the tax rate there can be little question that the provisions of the charter will be regarded as fair and reasonable. They mark the transition of the city from a village state to that of a great modern municipality. The consolidation of the city and the additional powers granted to the city by the state will mean comparatively little unless with this consolidation and with these powers we obtain funds sufficient to maintain us in our new estate.

DEMAND RAISED BY KEY MEN

Telegraphers Now Want 25 Per Cent Advance in Wages.

THINK PEACE PARLEY NEAR

Committee Appointed for Expected Conference with Companies.

The striking telegraphers made a move yesterday calculated to force the telegraph companies to grant them an early conference looking toward a settlement of the trouble. They raised their wage demands from 15 to 25 per cent. The action was taken at a mass-meeting of the strikers, where speakers declared the strike will be settled about Sept. 9.

On that day the board of directors of the Western Union will meet in New York. The operators believe that overtures for peace will be held out by the companies.

"We fully expect a settlement of the strike next week," said General Secretary Russell. He stated a committee composed of forty-five men and women operators will be sent to New York in a few days in readiness to meet the representatives of the companies on a peace basis. This committee will be authorized to make the settlement for the whole United States, he said.

The revision of the wage demands affects only the Chicago end of the strike. President Small, who is still in New York, will remain there for a week or two longer.

Local officials of the operators' union probably will visit Oscar S. Straus, head of the department of commerce and labor, who will arrive in Chicago today on his way to Washington from the west. The union has been making every effort to secure government interference of some sort and the visit of the head of this department, it is said, will be seized upon as the proper time to make known the local telegraph conditions to a representative of the president.

During the day a strike breaker named Frank Boyden was attacked by strikers at Van Buren and La Salle streets and severely beaten. His assailants were chased by the police, but escaped.

Thirty thousand letters were sent out to local unions in the United States asking each organization to contribute $10. A special massmeeting to mark Labor day will be held this afternoon at Brand's hall by the operators.

Small to Seek Aid of Law.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—It was announced today at headquarters that National President Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' union probably has gone to Albany and will have a conference with the attorney general on the subject of the complaints by the union that the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies are not keeping their obligations to the public and are violating their charter.

Daniel L. Russell, the head strategist of the strikers, said today: "The directors will meet on the 10th of this month, and I should not be surprised if George J. Gould will be back from Europe in time to attend the meeting. I have learned that there is great dissatisfaction among a number of stockholders at the present condition of affairs. It is likely that some action will be taken which will bring both sides in the dispute together."

There was a rumor that President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who is to speak at Jamestown tomorrow, will be in the city on Tuesday or Wednesday with a view to meeting the strike leaders and devising some plan of settlement.

OLDEST M. E. PREACHER DIES.

The Rev. Dr. John Mathews Succumbs—Was in Active Ministry for Sixty Years.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1.—The Rev. Dr. John Mathews, aged 81 years, the oldest minister in point of service in the Methodist Episcopal church south, died today at the home of his son, W. T. Mathews. The Rev. Mathews, who has preached in nearly every city and town in the United States during his sixty years of active ministry, retired from active work in 1902.

OBITUARY.

NELSON A. SAGER, Chicago, died on Friday, aged 53, at his residence, 5402 Lexington avenue. He was a civil engineer and had been employed by the city in the intercepting sewer department during twelve years. Born at Port Hope, Ont., he came to Chicago fifteen years ago. A widow and one daughter, 9 months old, are living. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock this morning from the residence.

FREDERICK W. SEAMAN, 35 years old, a trustee of the village board of Forest Park, formerly Harlem, died of pneumonia yesterday at his residence, 67 Thomas avenue, Forest Park. He was ill only a week and was able to attend the village board meeting last Wednesday. He was employed for several years in Marshall Field & Co.'s decorating department.

SAMUEL MARSHALL, founder of the Marshall & Ilsley bank, and the oldest banker in Milwaukee, is dead at the age of 87 years.

ADMITS KILLING WATCHMAN

W. Kretschmer Under Arrest for North Avenue Murder.

SELF-DEFENSE IS CLAIMED.

Used Pocket Knife After Two Shots Were Fired at Him.

William Kretschmer, a well to do liveryman in business at 138 East North avenue and residing with his wife and eight children at 84 Uhland street, is at the Central police station charged with the murder of William Krebes, watchman at the Bush & Gerts piano factory, Saturday night.

Louis Szczech, a driver for Kretschmer, and residing with his wife at 113 Frankfort street, is detained at the Hudson street police station as a witness. Both men have made full statements, Szczech blaming the crime on Kretschmer and the latter admitting the accusation, but asserting that he acted in self-defense.

The alley where Krebes was found runs between the Kretschmer livery barn and the piano factory. The two sons of the liveryman in sport were throwing a pair of old shoes at each other about 6 o'clock Saturday night when one of them landed close to Krebes, who became angry.

Takes Up Sons' Quarrel.

At this point Szczech arrived and, he claims, upon seeing a revolver in Krebes' hand remarked to him: "Any man who would pull his revolver is a big coward; you ought to be in the factory instead of out here in the alley." Following this Szczech asserts that Krebes struck him in the face with the revolver. Szczech avers he walked into the barn and that was all he knew about it until some time later when Kretschmer walked in and said: "I fixed him for using a revolver around here." Szczech then went into the alley and lifted the prostrate form and in so doing got blood on his own sleeves.

Schuettler had learned that there existed some feeling between Krebes and Szczech, and in following out this clew found Szczech with two wet shirt sleeves and accused him of the crime. Szczech then broke down and gave a written statement of what he knew.

Claims Watchman Shot at Him.

When seen in his cell soon after his arrest Kretschmer said to a reporter for THE TRIBUNE:

"Yes, I killed him, and I was justified. I was away when Krebes had trouble with my boys and threatened to shoot them, but as soon as I got home the boys told me about it. My first impulse was to forget it, but the boys complained that they were afraid of Krebes and that he had made threats previously.

"When I demanded to know from Krebes what he meant he fired two shots at me. One passed between my legs and the other flew by my left shoulder. Then he rushed at me and struck me in the face with the revolver and I pulled out my pocket knife and stabbed him about the head four or five times.

Shot Through the Head.

Seated in an armchair in his flat at 153 West Fifty-ninth street, John Ashcomb, 65 years old, was shot and killed early yesterday morning. Whether Ashcomb was murdered or took his own life in a fit of despondency because of ill health probably never will be known. He was alone in the flat, nobody heard the shot, and the evidence found yesterday supports both theories.

When the old man did not appear yesterday morning one of the neighbors went to his flat to inquire as to his health. The visitor was surprised to find the door open. A knock brought no response, and, entering the room, the man saw through an open door the body of Ashcomb seated upright in his armchair, with a bullet wound in his forehead. At his feet was the revolver, which, apparently, had inflicted the wound.

FIRE IN DOWNTOWN CAFE.

Cook Narrowly Escapes Burns and Girls Hurry Twenty Patrons from the Place.

A pan of grease in the kitchen of the Jackson restaurant, 257 Dearborn street, caught fire last evening, and the flames spread to the woodwork and walls and to the rooms of the Clover club upstairs. Damage amounting to $800 was done.

George Tennant, night cook, narrowly escaped being burned by the grease. Julia Keefe a waitress, and Mildred Davis, cashier, hurried twenty persons from the place. The arrival of the fire department caused excitement at the Great Northern hotel.

PASS SENTENCE IN LAND FRAUDS

Judge at San Francisco, Cal., Imposes Heavy Penalty on Benson and Perrin.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 1.—United States District Judge De Haven has sentenced John A. Benson and E. B. Perrin, recently convicted of land fraud, to ten years' imprisonment in the Alameda county jail and to pay a fine of $1,000 each.

considered by it. It is not probable that further hearings would result in the presenting of any new arguments.

"To the subject of universal long distance connections the committee has given much time and consideration. It would be difficult to produce any new argument on this subject.

"An objection has been raised to the time limit of five minutes on messages. The company believed such a provision should be inserted in the interest of good service. The rule is now in force and only taken advantage of in cases of abuses."

Snow May Call a Meeting.

"If Chairman Young will not call a meeting of the committee I shall," declared Ald. Snow. "I know it has never been done before, but the council rules provide that in all cases not provided for by them Roberts' rules of order shall prevail, and Roberts' rules say that when a chairman fails to call a committee together two members can. Ald. Foell will join with me in the call.

"The demand for furtherhearings by telephone users is insistent and should not be denied. Of course if the majority of the committee refuses to attend the meeting we call there will be no quorum, but it will at least serve to draw public attention to the situation and incidentally give us an opportunity to prepare a minority report."

Phone Users Make Demand.

The Telephone Users' Protective league, of which C. F. Wiehe of the Lunberman's association is president, and W. H. Bennett of the Retail Hardware Dealers' association secretary, and which speaks for twenty-eight commercial associations, made a demand on Chairman Young for another meeting of the committee in a letter saying:

"The time has now come when we expect you to redeem the promises you frequently made to representatives of our membership during your session of last summer, the promises being that you would give the representatives of business interests protesting against the then draft of the telephone ordinance an opportunity for a full and complete hearing of further objections upon completion of your work upon the measure.

"We regret that your committee seems to have assumed that the objection members of this league made to the measured rate feature of the proposed ordinance was their sole basis for action. Such is not the case. We merely made the objection to the measured rate the leading issue, assuming that your honorable body would take up, in proper sequence, other features of the ordinance which, we believe, work for greater harm, perhaps, to citizens of Chicago than the abolition of the flat rate.

"In this situation it is a matter of regret to us, and one that we must protest against in the strongest possible way, that your committee is, as we firmly believe, being misled by the agents of the Chicago Telephone company into unwarranted approval of legislation which will endanger for all time the rights of Chicago and its citizens."

Lincoln begins his famous letter to Mrs. Bixby with the words, "I have been shown."

GEORGIA ROADS CUT RATES TODAY

Principal Lines of State Expected to Obey New Law for Cheaper Fares.

INJUNCTION IS REFUSED.

Officials of the Railways Not Following the Statute Will Be Prosecuted.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The order of the Georgia railroad commission reducing passenger fares goes into effect tomorrow and will be obeyed by every road in the state. Officials of roads disregarding the law will be indicted and prosecuted by Gov. Hoke Smith.

The governor has notified all judges and prosecuting officers in the state to watch for violations of the law.

The indications are that every road in the state will put tickets on sale at reduced rates. The roads so far have been unable to secure a federal injunction and there seems nothing to do but to obey the order.

Court Denies Injunction.

The Atlanta Coast line, the Georgia Central, and the Atlanta and West Point went before United States Judge Shelby at Huntsville, Ala., yesterday and asked for an injunction, but the judge refused to grant it. The judge, however, ordered the Georgia commission to appear on Sept. 10 in Atlanta before some United States Circuit judge to show cause why an injunction should not be granted.

In refusing a restraining order Judge Shelby commented sharply on the action of the railroad in waiting until two days, one of them Sunday, before the order was to take effect to ask for an injunction although the order reducing rates was made three months ago. Judge Shelby held that there is no presumption to begin with that the order of the commission is invalid, and there is prima facie evidence that the commission has acted in good faith, and that the order reducing the rate is not confiscatory.

Court Ruling Aids State.

"I cannot hold," says Judge Shelby, "that the affidavit to the bill filed by the railroads outweigh the prima facie presumption that the action of the Georgia railroad commission is valid. I am of the opinion that the motion for a temporary restraining order should be overruled."

This action by Judge Shelby made Gov. Smith master of the situation, and reduced rates will go into effect tomorrow. The railroads probably will continue the fight, but it will be in such a manner as to cause no clash between the state and the United States. Gov. Smith tonight refused to discuss the matter further than to say, "I shall enforce the law."

Wilbraham, Mass., Sept. 1.—An automobile containing Mr. and Mrs. Sumner R. Hollander of Boston ran down and killed the 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Otis of Palmer today. The child and her mother had just alighted from a street car.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollander went to Palmer, where Mr. Hollander gave himself formally into custody and was held for manslaughter.

Mr. Hollander is a son of L. P. Hollander of the firm of L. P. Hollander & Co., Boston.

Boy's Life Crushed Out.

Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The 4 year old son of Albert Reynolds of Ripley was struck by an automobile today and instantly killed. The automobile was owned by James Forman of Erie, Pa., who, in trying to avoid the accident, ran into a ditch and was injured.

Speed Mania Costs One Life.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Another wild after midnight race of rich young autoists here ended fatally at daybreak when William Armstrong, aged 20 years, died at West Pennsylvania hospital from a crushed skull. With two companions he had raced on the East Grand boulevard in an auto this morning, and the chauffeur, in trying to turn out from a danger signal where work was being done on the road crashed into a telegraph post. The auto was going forty miles an hour. The chauffeur alone escaped serious injury. Claude Hess and S. A. Foster were the others injured, but both will live. Armstrong is the son of John S. Armstrong, formerly police magistrate of Pittsburg, and a wealthy real estate man.

Car's Plunge Kills and Maims.

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 1.—A big touring car plunged over a fifteen foot embankment at Pine City, near Elmira, today, killing H. B. Smith of Tioga, Pa., and injuring four others. One of the injured men, John Henry of Canandaigua, is confined in the Arnot Ogden hospital, where fear is expressed that he is injured internally and likely to die. The others are not seriously hurt.

The party was bound from Corning, N. Y., to Tioga, Pa., the home of Waldo Whitehead, who owned the car, and who was seated in the rear seat with Henry and Smith. The chauffeur, F. Vangorder of Corning, and James Barrett, a guide, were seated in front. Barrett had been taken into the car only a few moments before the accident, as the party was unfamiliar with the road.

At the point where the accident occurred the road turns abruptly. Through a misunderstanding between the chauffeur and guide the car continued straight ahead and plunged off the embankment, turning completely over and pinning the occupants underneath.

Auto Hits Buggy; Eight Hurt.

Mineola, L. I., Sept. 1.—The big touring automobile of Wilfred G. Lynch, a real estate man from New York, smashed into a buggy here last night, injuring eight persons, several of them seriously. The car is said to have been going at a speed of thirty-five or forty miles an hour. Lynch sustained a compound fracture of the left leg and internal injuries. His wife suffered a sprained ankle and was bruised about the body.

Charles Dillingham Near Death.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Caught between an uptown and a downtown car at Fortieth street and Broadway, this morning, the new French racing runabout owned by Charles Dillingham, the theatrical manager, was literally ground to pieces. Mr. Dillingham saved himself by jumping forward from his seat to the hood of the machine. He was uninjured. The escape of the chauffeur, George Theobald, was little short of miraculous, for the machine was crushed like an eggshell on both sides of him.

Italian Race Costs Three Lives.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Sept. 1.—The automobile race for the Florio cup at Brescia today resulted directly or indirectly in the death of three men, two of them men of title, and the serious injury of two others.

The first accident occurred when the Marquis Pallavicino was driving his automobile from Rome to Brescia to witness the race. With him in the car were Sig. Malvano, an eminent lawyer, a chauffeur, and a mechanician. Near Magenta, while the car was crossing the railway tracks, a train suddenly dashed down at full speed into the side of the car.

All the occupants of the car were thrown out on the track. Sig. Malvano died immediately of a broken skull. The Marquis Pallavicino died in the hospital at Magenta. The chauffeur was dangerously injured.

The mechanician was the only one of the occupants of the car who escaped unhurt.

During the race itself at Brescia Baron de Martino was entering the fourth round, when his car suddenly capsized, pinning the baron underneath.

The crowd witnessing the race was terrorized for a moment, but men soon rushed to the rescue. It was too late, however, for the baron was already dead. The accident was apparently due to some sudden damage to the brake of the car, which caused the driver to lose control of the machine, which bumped into the edge of the street, where it was overturned and fell into a small ditch. The mechanician of the car was also seriously hurt.

AUTOMOBILE SMASHES A CAB; KNOCKS DOWN MALACHY HOGAN

Dark Street and Wet Asphalt, Which Let Machine Skid, Blamed for the Accident.

An automobile owned and driven by Lewis Julian, 1253 Michigan avenue, crashed into a cab that was standing on Michigan avenue near Jackson boulevard early yesterday morning, slightly injuring three men.

Malachy Hogan, who owns a saloon at 27 Quincy street, was about to enter the cab when the big touring car struck it in the rear. The cab driver, James Mouchan, Hogan, and another man who was in the cab, but refused to tell his name, were hurled to the sidewalk.

At the time of the collision the streets were dark, owing to an accident in the city electric power house. Julian said the darkness and the fact that the streets were so wet that his machine skidded were responsible for the accident.

Mrs. M. E. Goodman and her sister, Mrs. E. Eisenstadt, 4521 Forrestville avenue, who were bruised and cut in a collision Saturday afternoon between their car and that of Jonas M. Cleland, 218 Sixtieth street, in which were his wife and daughter, at Michigan avenue and Hubbard place, are on the road to recovery. Both said they were not hurt seriously.

"Mr. Cleland was not to blame and he acted like a gentleman," Mr. Goodman said. "In spite of his own bruises he hurried to Mrs. Goodman's assistance and helped to extricate her from the wreck and obtain medical aid."

After viewing the remains of Paul Spangenborg, 8 years old, who was killed by the automobile of Richard O. Kandler, Deputy Coroner Andrew issued a permit for the boy's parents to take the body to Racine, Wis., for interment.

SAVES BOY; LETS FATHER DIE

Forced to Choose, New Yorker Rescues Brother from Water.

BOAT ACCIDENT THE CAUSE.

All Three Thrown from Launch by Collision with Dock.

DROWNINGS OF THE SEASON.....589

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—William Hirsch Jr., 22 years old, of East New York, had to determine quickly this evening which he would save, his father or his younger brother, Edward, who were drowning in Old Mill creek. He saved the brother, who is 13 years old.

His father, William Hirsch Sr., 47 years old, sank, and when taken from the water fifteen minutes later was dead.

Hirsch had taken the two boys out for a ride in a naphtha launch, and they had cruised around Jamaica bay all afternoon. They arrived in Old Mill creek at 7 o'clock.

Engine Breaks Down.

The engine then went wrong. It ran away with them and they could not stop it. The father was obliged to leave the steering wheel for a minute to try and readjust the machinery.

The launch struck the dock and turned over. The father and his two sons were thrown into the water. The tide at that point in the creek is like a mill race and a turn in the creek causes strong eddies.

William Jr., who is a strong swimmer, knew that his brother and father could not swim. He saw his father seized by an eddy and carried out into the stream. Edward was splashing about helplessly.

Decision Quickly Made.

The swimmer's decision was quickly made. Several strokes took him to the side of his brother. He dived down for the boy and, bringing him to the surface, fought to get him to the shore.

It was thought by persons near that all three would drown, but William, with the assistance of two men who threw a rope to him, managed to make a landing. In the meantime the father sank for the last time.

Chicago Boys Escape Lake.

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—A little sailboat, the Hobo, which left Chicago for Michigan City today with Claude and Floyd Guise on board, capsized and sank in midlake. The two boys, after swimming about until almost exhausted, were picked up by the crew of the yacht Dreamer and brought here.

Bather Loses His Life.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Henry Rickett, 23, while swimming here today, stepped into a gravel hole and was drowned.

TWO CHICAGO BOYS DROWN; ONE AN EXPERT SWIMMER.

David Sicard, Son of Professor in High School, Loses Life in Michigan—Newsboy Sinks on Lake Front.

Two Chicago boys lost their lives by drowning yesterday. One, an expert swimmer, sank while swimming around a breakwater at Pine Bay, Mich. The other, a newsboy, lost his life in the lake at the foot of Fourteenth street.

The Dead.

MACK, ROBERT, 18 years old, living at Newsboys' home, 1418 Wabash avenue; taken with cramp and drowned while swimming in the lake at Fourteenth street; body recovered by police.

SICARD, DAVID, 16 years old, son of Prof. Ernest Sicard, teacher of French in the North Division high school; drowned while swimming in the lake at Pine Bay, Mich.

Sicard and George Barton Hall, 16 years old, a son of the Rev. George Hall, pastor of the Bush Temple church, had been spending a vacation at Pine Bay, Mich. Yesterday Sicard was trying his endurance, it is said, by swimming around a breakwater that extends 200 feet into the lake. Hall, in a rowboat, was following.

As the swimmer was rounding the end of the breakwater he was either seized with a cramp or caught by an undercurrent. He cried for help and sank beneath the water, but did not rise.

Hall rowed to where Sicard sank and dived to save his chum. Several times he did this without finding trace of Sicard. The body was not recovered until after the life saving crew from Holland arrived and worked for more than an hour.

BABY ELEPHANT DOES DANCE AND PLAYS TUNE AT ZOO.

Keeper's Daughter Puts Huge Infant Animal Through Paces—Performance Interests a Large Crowd.

New York, Sept. 1.—Hattie, the baby elephant of the Central park zoo, was put through her paces this afternoon by her namesake, Hattie Snyder, the keeper's 15 year old daughter, who has learned from her father the art of handling the animal.

The animal at the slightest word from the keeper's daughter obeyed without the least semblance of surliness.

"Stand up on your hind legs," said the young trainer, and the elephant obeyed. She was then told to creep like a baby, which she did, creeping around her cage after the manner of an infant. Then followed a salute to the crowd of sightseers, after which she sat on a tub and crossed her legs as though taking a much needed rest after her exertions.

At the final exhibition the girl placed within the trunk of Hattie a small mouth organ, which had been specially constructed, and the elephant without a moment's hesitation started a strain which the onlookers said resembled the air of "Home, Sweet Home." While playing the tune the beast ambled about the cage in imitation of a dance.

MAN IN DISABLED LAUNCH BURNS HIS COAT AS SIGNAL.

Captain of Steamer Notifies Life Savers, Who Rescue Five Persons from a Drifting Boat.

Five men were rescued from a disabled gasoline launch five miles from shore last evening by Capt. Carland and his life saving crew. The men rescued were G., E. and H. Gunderson, 856 Maplewood avenue, owners of the launch; H. E. Olson, 269 Ems street; and Samuel D. Knight, 117 Fifty-first court.

The launch started from Van Buren street early in the afternoon and went to the four mile crib.

On the return trip the motor gave out and efforts to fix it were unsuccessful. The men signaled several steamers, but their signals were not seen. They drifted farther out into the lake, and after dark they sighted the lights of the excursion steamer Theodore Roosevelt.

H. Gunderson then took off his coat, saturated it with gasoline, and ignited it after he had put it on a piece of board which he had broken off one of the seats. His signal was seen by members of the crew of the steamer and they notified Capt. Carland.

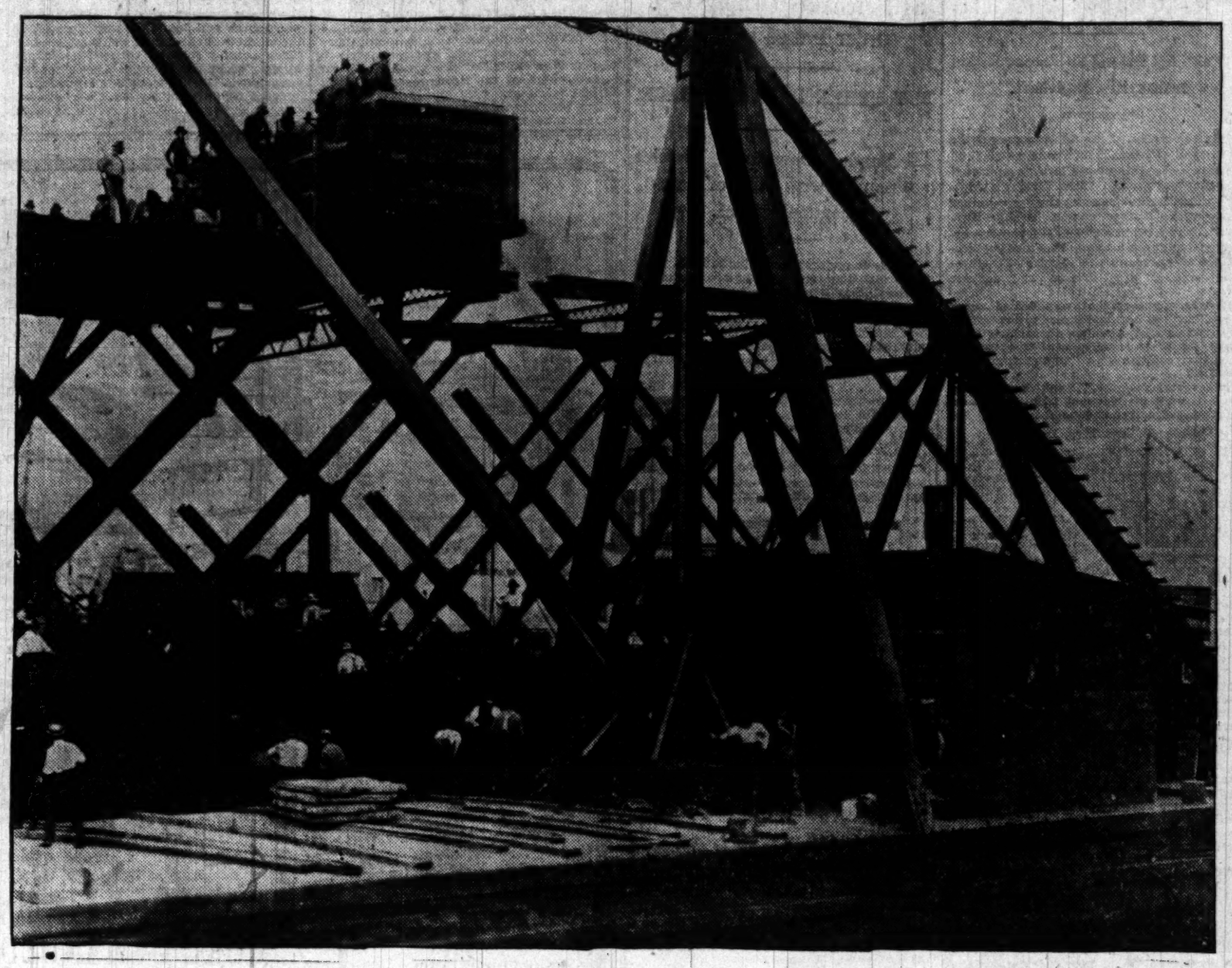
Altering of Northwestern Railway Bridge Great Engineering Feat

One-third of the structure over the north branch of the Chicago river cut off and replaced by temporary affair in less than nine hours.

[From photographs taken for THE TRIBUNE.]



Traffic was interrupted less than nine hours yesterday by a remarkable engineering feat which marked the beginning of a new and modern bascule bridge over the north branch of the Chicago river for the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

The construction derrick is shown in the foreground of the accompanying picture. At the right is the section of the old bridge which was cut off and replaced by a temporary structure.

The box high up in the picture at the left of the center is filled with 160 tons of pig iron, which serves as a counter balance for the two-thirds of the old bridge still in use.

Buoyed up by the "proclamation of the Great Chicago hat party" and the favorable action of the weather man, the straw hat declined to go yesterday. At least seven out of every ten men seen on the street wore straw hats.

In defiance of the canvas signs that decorated the downtown cafés proclaiming "Oyster Season Here," the temperature rose to a record breaking mark for Sept. 1. The maximum for the day, 92 degrees up in the aerie of Prof. Henry J. Cox, the weather forecaster, and of 94 degrees street level, is higher than the temperature of any Sept. 1 on record for thirty-six years and equal to the record for this summer. Temperature later in September, however, has exceeded this mark on several occasions.

The record for the month was reached Sept. 5, 1899, with a temperature of 98 degrees. In the year 1897 the thermometer rose to 95 degrees on Sept. 7, and in 1892 the maximum temperature for September was reached on the ninth day, with 94 degrees.

Straw Hatters Safe from Badinage.

Prof. Cox, in keeping with the "emancipation proclamation of the great hat party," agrees that the "derogatory badinage" is on the oyster this year and not on the straw hats.

"This is great weather for straw hats and hay fever," said the professor last evening. "I don't care to prophesy for more than two days ahead, but I will admit that I intend to wear my straw hat a couple of weeks yet, anyhow."

Prof. Cox said the reason for the extreme temperature yesterday was due to a shift in the wind, blowing towards the lake rather than from it.

"The wind has been from the southwest and west today," he said. "It has been bringing us a touch of what the towns away from the influence of the lake have been having right along."

Prof. Cox predicted that today will be at least ten degrees cooler than yesterday.

The temperature rose rapidly from a minimum of 71 degrees early in the morning. During the day two men are known to have been overcome by the heat.

Early in the morning residents in all parts of the city began to seek the cool spots. The excursion vessels were loaded to their capacity, carrying thousands of pleasure seekers across the lake, while thousands who remained within the city thronged to the parks and sought rest and quiet in the shade. Every available spot was utilized. The "keep off the grass" law at Grant park, about Art institute, was not enforced, and the lawn was swarmed with perspiring downtown sightseers. The bathing beaches for the first time in a week were the scenes of large crowds, and hundreds of owners of private launches and yachts sought the cool breezes on the blue, placid lake.

SHOCK FOR M'DONALD HEIRS

Widow of Former Gambler Returns to Family Residence.

LEGAL TRICK IS SUSPECTED.

Armistice Is Declared Until Probating of Her Husband's Will.

Sick and nearly penniless, Mrs. Dora McDonald, widow of "Mike" McDonald, has returned to the family residence at 4501 Drexel boulevard, which her husband had not allowed her to enter since the shooting of Webster Guerin last February.

This action on the part of the widow has startled the other heirs, who fear it may conceal some legal trick affecting their interests. Every peaceful means possible has been taken to induce her to leave, but without avail, and an armistice has been declared between the contending factions until Wednesday, when the will is to be probated.

Mrs. McDonald last Friday left the sanitarium at which she had been staying since her release from jail on bond, and with her nurse, Amanda Beck, appeared in a cab at the family residence. L. V. Rickey, placed in charge of the house until the will could be probated, was told Mrs. McDonald wished to get some of her things. Once intrenched in the large front room on the second floor, however, she refused to consider such an uncomfortable thing as departure.

Sharp Colloquy with Stepson.

When her stepson, Guy McDonald, arrived he found the widow reclining on a couch and surrounded by pillows.

"How long do you intend to stay here?" he demanded.

"I expected to get out tomorrow," replied Mrs. McDonald, "but am feeling so ill I am afraid I had better not leave."

"Well, you can't stay here."

"And why not?" she retorted. "Am I not your father's widow? I have as much or more right than you have here. Get out yourself."

"Now, look here," pleaded young McDonald. "You know my father would not let you return if he were alive."

"I know nothing of the sort."

"Why did you come back here? Are you 'broke'?" bluntly demanded the young man.

"That is one reason," Mrs. McDonald responded, "and then the doctors thought it would be better for me at home."

"We'll get you out of here Wednesday when the will is probated or else you will have to pay rent to the estate," was the parting shot.

Since that time Mrs. McDonald has remained in her room on the second floor, while a close watch has been maintained on her by Rickey. A colored maid is the only medium of communication between the two hostile camps.

Young McDonald on Guard.

Young McDonald and Rickey occupied the first floor and the front porch last night, while the widow and her aids, increased to two by the addition of her mother, had exclusive control of the upper floors and the back yard.

"I'm here to see that she doesn't carry off anything that belongs to the estate," explained McDonald. "She is welcome to whatever there may be that is her own personal property. I have told her that. But if we don't watch her she may not stop there. She claims that certain pieces of table linen, which I suppose cost $75 or $100 each, belong to her. My father's initials are worked in each one of them, and she shall not have them unless she can prove legal ownership, which she cannot.

"Sick! I don't think there is anything the matter with her. She's just decided to come back here because her money is running out. But we'll not have her here unless she is willing to pay rent for the place out of her dower right."

Mrs. McDonald sent down word that she could not be seen.

"She is too ill to talk tonight," explained Mrs. Beck, the nurse. "Besides that, she is asleep."

GOSPEL CAMPAIGN IN TENT

More than 2,000 Persons Profess Religion at a Big Meeting.

DR. DIXON STIRS AUDIENCE.

Norsemen Smile at His Account of Seasickness on Atlantic.

More than 2,000 persons stood up and publicly confessed their faith in Christ at a big revival meeting held in a tent yesterday at West Fullerton and Spaulding avenues. It was one of a series of "gospel campaign" meetings to be held there daily until Sept. 21. Despite the warm weather every seat was occupied and not a single person left the meeting until after the benediction had been given.

The Rev. W. R. Marshall, pastor of Kimball Avenue Evangelical church, presided. A union chorus of 200 singers, made up of the choirs of nine churches in the vicinity, led the singing under the direction of D. B. Towner of Moody's church.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. A. C. Dixon of Moody's church. In describing a sea voyage of St. Paul, which he illustrated by an account of his personal experience on a trip across the Atlantic ocean, the minister said:

"The sea is the most terrible thing on earth. It impresses me as the primeval void that hasn't come to order yet.

"That is probably because I get so seasick when I am on the ocean. To me it is a dirty, rolling, awful thing."

Apologizes to the Norsemen.

At this point the minister noticed that several bronzed, brawny looking men in the front benches nudged each other and smiled. It was easy to see that they were Norsemen and former seadogs. Dr. Dixon caught the idea at once, and said:

"I beg the pardon of every tar and Norseman here who may love the sea and its rolling billows. As for me, I couldn't bear to hear even the bible read to me when I was on the ocean. I was sick; I was literally in the dumps."

Dr. Dixon dwelt upon the idea of service to God as the highest form of liberty. He illustrated this by narrating a story of an Englishman who purchased a slave in Egypt and then set the slave free.

"The slave immediately offered to serve the Englishman all his life," said the preacher. "The highest form of liberty is the circle of service to Christ. When God speaks you can afford to trust him, whether you feel like it or not. God wants men of action. There is a statue in London of St. George. When you have seen this statue several times you begin to get a feeling of pain because the horse and rider are just on the point of moving, but they never move.

Preaching to a Lot of Statues.

"I have been preaching to a lot of St. George statues all my life. I have a lot of them down in the old Chicago avenue church. Now, all who confess Christ as their Lord and Savior stand up."

With only a few exceptions the entire audience arose. Then Prof. Towner stepped forward and sang a solo. This was followed by a hymn sung by the choir and the audience. During the singing a large number in the audience went forward and shook Dr. Dixon's hand and asked to be prayed for.

A big "Labor day meeting" will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock and tonight at 8, with Dr. Dixon preaching. The meetings are conducted under the auspices of nine Evangelical churches located in the vicinity. Services in the evening were held in the various churches.

A feature of the revival will be the meetings to be held in the Scandinavian languages every Saturday night. The Rev. C. W. Finwall, pastor of Logan Square Norwegian Baptist church, will preside at the Scandinavian meetings. Dr. Dixon will preach in the English language every afternoon and evening on all other days.

A special chorus of Norwegian, Swedish, and Danish singers will be organized at the close of the meeting tomorrow evening. The Rev. A. G. Hegstrom, general missionary of the Swedish American Baptist conference, will preach at the Scandinavian meeting next Saturday.

ROAD HELD FOR FATAL WRECK

Coroner's Jury Says Carelessness Caused Charleston Crash.

LAX METHODS ARE SCORED.

Incompetent Employes Alleged to Have Charge of Line.

Charleston, Ill., Sept. 1.—The coroner's jury, which has been investigating Friday's wreck on the Central Illinois Traction company's line, which resulted in the death of fourteen persons and the serious injury to scores of others, today returned a verdict holding the road, its officials, and the motormen of the two trains which collided responsible for the crash.

The jury charged that the traction company employs incompetent men in responsible positions, that it does not keep in its principal office some person from whom any employé can get positive instructions in the movement of cars, and that instructions to employés on days when the regular schedule is not in force are misleading.

Motormen Ben F. McClara and Charles Botts, who were in charge of the wrecked cars, were arrested today following the finding of the verdict. Both were charged with criminal negligence. They were released later in bonds of $3,000 each.

McClara, who was driving the express car, is accused of carelessness in leaving Charleston for the trip without knowing where the other car was, and Botts is charged with disobeying orders in not having his car, the one which carried the passengers, under proper control while going around the curve where the disaster occurred.

EXPERTS WITNESS ENGINEERING FEAT

One-Third of Railway Bridge Cut Off and Replaced by Temporary Structure.

SHORT DELAY OF TRAINS.

Traffic Is Interrupted Less than Nine Hours by the Workmen's Operations.

An engineering feat that attracted the attention of the technical world was accomplished yesterday by the bridge engineers of the Northwestern railroad when they cut off one-third of the track bridge over the north branch of the Chicago river and substituted a temporary structure in its place in less than nine hours.

An announcement that plans for this hurried work had been adopted led a large number of civil engineers, builders, and contractors to witness the accomplishment. Frequently early in the day doubt was expressed that the task could not be finished before evening, but congratulations were poured upon the successful men some time before the hour set for completion.

To carry out the plan there were necessary 150 men, two pile drivers, a steam crane, tugs, and scows. E. C. Carter, chief engineer; his assistant, W. H. Finley, and Division Engineer W. H. Robinson supervised the construction, which was under the immediate direction of W. L. Curtis, who was assisted by R. L. Stern, bridge engineer for the road.

Work Rapid and Systematic.

The last train passed over the old swinging bridge at 8:40 a. m. and at the end of two hours after the bridge had been swung thirty feet of it had been cut off. Hacksaws severed the lesser braces of the iron structure, and the cords were parted by tangent holes made with air drills. The section cut off was allowed to remain on the center pier.

Overhead, where strong wooden boxes had been bolted together, a gang of laborers was busily engaged in packing 100 pound bars of pig iron which were raised by the steam crane. This weight, which reached a total of 160 tons, was placed on transverse stringers as far from the center as possible on the shortened arm to counterbalance the excessive weight of the unshortened end.

On the river, working from scows, other gangs of men placed beams and stringers across the piles, which were capped ready for them, until the surface, speedily covered with ties, was at the bridge level.

At 3 o'clock everything seemed in confusion, hammers, hatchets, adzes, sledges, mauls, wrenches, riveters, and crowbars everywhere seemed to be at work. Great beams and small boards, nails, bolts, and spikes were carried in every direction. The engineers were directing the foremen, the bosses were shouting at the men, and the men were growling in strange tongues under the hot sun.

Regular Trains Are Resumed.

But it was not long before the influence of systematic direction began to show itself. All the lumber, cut ready for instant use, had been molded into one form. The great pieces, matched together and held with precision by bolts and spikes, were in their final places, rails were placed across them, and at 5 o'clock the bridge was swung back to its place, the curving end of the new structure was matched to its complement on the dismembered bridge, the spikes were driven fast, the bridge lock was replaced, and the first train passed over it shortly after 5:30 p. m.

At first preference was given to incoming trains, but in a few minutes both tracks were working and the terminal facilities of the Northwestern were as good as ever they were. The purpose back of the work was to better these facilities. A four track bascule is to be erected on the west side of the present bridge and for this construction the arm of the old structure, which would not permit the work unless it remained closed, was cut off.

The concrete work for the bascule will be begun at once. As the foundation is to be ninety-five feet below the river level, caissons will have to be sunk.

TUCKER'S VISIT IS MYSTERY.

Spends Hours at Office Examining Papers Believed to Have Connection with Divorce Case.

Lieut. Col. William F. Tucker, paymaster of the department of the lakes, U. S. A., spent several hours yesterday during churchgoing time in his office at the federal building on mysterious business. It was said that he was examining important papers.

At the same time the newspapers announced in dispatches from Raton, N. M., that Mrs. Myrtle B. Pratt, named as Mrs. Tucker's rival, was signing papers there at the government's request.

Tucker's brother-in-law, Thomas E. Wilder, at Elmhurst, said:

"I don't think the colonel will come home at all tonight. I understand he will be in his office tomorrow. What took him there this forenoon is a mystery to me, but I understand he had important work, even if it was a Sunday.

"The colonel is confident he can clear himself of every charge made by his wife and her relatives."

CUT SIZE OF CARS; SAVE THIN PEOPLE

Engineers' Chairman Would Increase Clearance Space Between Passing Trains.

NOVEL OBJECTION MADE.

C. V. Weston May Oppose Bion J. Arnold's Plan Because Fat Men Are Forgotten.

The question of space between street car tracks in Chicago under the rehabilitation of the traction system will be settled definitely at a meeting of the supervising board of engineers tomorrow.

Bion J. Arnold, chairman of the board, will recommend that the clearance between passing cars be increased to twenty inches by reducing the width of cars and by increasing the distance between track centers.

While Mr. Arnold champions greater space, H. B. Fleming will oppose it. C. V. Weston, the remaining member of the board, is said to be undetermined in his attitude.

Mr. Arnold believes the safety of the public is of the first importance. He is of the opinion that the arguments in favor of the narrow space between cars are not sufficient to warrant the board in fixing permanently upon Chicago a system of transportation having an unnecessary element of danger in it.

Arnold Wants Narrow Cars.

The standard distance at present between track centers is nine feet eight and a half inches. With cars nine feet wide now in use this leaves a space less than nine inches between passing cars. Mr. Arnold will recommend the adoption of cars eight feet six inches wide and an increase of the distance between track centers to ten feet two inches.

By this arrangement the distance between the cars and the street curbs will remain the same as at present. The claim that the part of the street between tracks and curb would be narrowed to the inconvenience of the traffic has been one of the staple arguments of those opposed to the increased clearance plan.

An alternative suggestion may be to increase the distance between track centers to ten feet four inches and reduce the width of cars to eight feet eight inches.

In either case the least clearance between cars would be twenty inches and probably as much as twenty-two inches. The new cars which have been placed in commission in the last few months, such as those used on the Indiana avenue line, are nine feet wide and built with regard to the comfort rather than the safety of the public. In passing, these cars would crush any one who happened to be caught between them.

"Pay as You Enter" Style Proposed.

A clearance of twenty or twenty-two inches as proposed by Mr. Arnold, on the other hand, would be sufficient for absolute safety. Mr. Arnold believes suitable cars for Chicago need not be wider than eight feet six inches in view of the fact the new cars ordered by the Union Traction company are only eight feet five inches wide. One of the future possibilities of the rehabilitated system will be the "pay as you enter" style of car. This would make a wide aisle unnecessary.

Mr. Arnold recently has investigated the distance between car tracks on wide and narrow streets in New York. He found the distance was ten feet two inches, which, with the narrow type of car used in New York, gives a clearance between cars of more than two feet.

Fat Men Ignored, Says Weston.

"I am open to conviction, but I do not think a wider clearance advisable," said Mr. Weston yesterday. "A twenty inch clearance would not be enough to provide safety for fat men. It would hardly be fair to provide for the safety of only a part of the public. In fact, twenty inches would not be safe for any one. Nine persons out of ten would be killed or dangerously injured if caught between moving cars in such a space. It would require wonderfully steady nerves and absolute coolness to enable a person to come through such an experience unscathed. I think wider space is in the nature of an invitation to persons to put themselves in a position to be trapped. It would make the public careless."

Mr. Weston said he did not believe the change in plan would be adopted.

ZION CITY FACTORIES PASS TO NEW PROPRIETORS TODAY.

Report Says Marshall Field & Co. Will Put $1,000,000 Worth of Machinery in Candy and Lace Plants.

Marshall Field & Co. will take possession of the candy and lace factories and twenty-six acres of ground at Zion City today. It is announced at Zion City that $1,000,000 worth of new machinery will be installed and that the working force in the lace factory will be doubled.

The purchaser takes title through a warranty deed, few of which exist for Zion City properties. It had been Dowie's custom to give a 1,100 year lease. The only restriction the deed contains is regarding intoxicating liquors.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, the deposed leader, announced that he had a new city scheme along socialistic lines for the faithful. He will give full details of the plan tonight, and on Tuesday will go in a private car to Las Vegas, N. M., in the interest of the scheme. He advised his followers to sell their Zion City holdings, and figured that the proceeds would net him $600,000, for which he could buy 60,000 acres of land from the Vegas Colonization company. He cautioned them against buying plots as individuals and suggested a common fund to purchase the city for his followers.

TWICE SEEKS TO ENTER HOUSE.

Alleged Miscreant, Balked by Wealthy Farmer, Captured After Chase Near Libertyville, Ill.

As a result of making two attempts Saturday night to enter the home of W. Wright, a wealthy farmer living near Libertyville, Ill., William Welch, a farm hand, was arrested yesterday after he had led the deputy sheriff an exciting race through cornfields. Welch is said to have first attempted to enter the servants' room in the home of Wright, but fled when the latter threatened to shoot him. It is alleged he returned later with a companion and, climbing the porch, tried to break into the room of Wright's daughter. The girl's father again drove him away and yesterday procured a warrant for his arrest. Welch had been warned, but was captured several miles from Libertyville.

HURT IN RACE; WILL RECOVER.

Ferd Meacham, Jackson Park Yachtsman Injured in Saturday's Contest, Out of Danger.

Ferd Meacham, a member of the Jackson Park Yacht club and part owner of the yacht Sachewan, who was injured Saturday afternoon by being thrown against the boat's machinery while engaged in a race with F. H. Noble's Swastika, and taken to the hospital at Michigan City, Ind., was reported by the hospital authorities yesterday to be out of danger.

SAYS NURSES 'WINED' FRIEND

"Supper Affair" Rumor Stirs Frances E. Willard Hospital.

OFFICIAL MAKES A DENIAL.

"Drink" Not Behind the Recent Strike, Insists Mrs. Inglehart,

That the strike of the thirty nurses at the Frances E. Willard Temperance hospital on Saturday was precipitated by a "suspicion" that they had "wined" Miss Wright, a graduate nurse, at the banquet they gave in her honor at the Nurses' homes, 99 De Kalb street, was a widely circulated rumor yesterday afternoon among the medical students and nurses in the vicinity of the hospital building at Harrison and Lincoln streets.

It was a rumor that was denied many times, but it was at last traced to a coterie of close friends of a nurse whom Mrs. Margaret Inglehart, chairman of the board of directors, charges with "instigating all the trouble."

The report that the "drink demon" had made trouble in the great temperance hospital caused a tremendous sensation.

"False," Says Mrs. Inglehart.

"I have talked with pretty nearly all the nurses in reference to the kinds of drink that were served at the spread they gave to Miss Wright, and I can say with the assurance of a solemn oath that it is false—dreadfully false—to say any strong drink was used," said Mrs. Inglehart. "Besides, I wish to deny emphatically that there was any real strike at all. Whatever little unpleasantness occurred was fomented, we believe, by one nurse. I have no doubt that she will be firmly dealt with."

No Special Meeting Called.

Mrs. Inglehart asked to have a correction made as to the date of the next meeting of the directors.

"It is not true," she said, "that there is to be any special meeting of the board tomorrow or at any other time to consider the late unpleasantness. The regular meeting will be held on Sept. 9.

"None of the nurses drinks anything stronger than water—not even tea or coffee—unless they all have become backsliders since one of them became a fomenter of insubordination."

A member of the staff of nurses said that a majority of them were of the opinion they should be permitted to use "unfermented" wines at the Nurses' home if they wanted to.

NEW BRANCH POSTOFFICE ALL READY FOR BUSINESS.

Armour Station, in Indiana Avenue, Installed Without Interruption of Routine.

In the small hours of last night the finishing touches were completed to the new branch postoffice at 3017 Indiana avenue, henceforth to be known as Armour station, and the last of the fixtures were moved from the old station at Thirty-third street and Armour avenue. The change was completed without interruption of business, and as soon as the pneumatic tubes are installed the new office will be complete.

"The moving has been a big job, and it certainly has kept us busy to move and transact business at the same time," said Postmaster Blaurock. "But it is worth all the work. The old office was a pretty poor place, dark and drafty and inconvenient. The new station will be one of the finest branch offices in the city."

Supt. Blattner will have his office in the new building. Tomorrow the mails will be distributed from the new station and the old station will be abandoned.

RID STATE STREET OF MONSTER SIGNS

Electric Wigglers Disappear as Merchants Comply with Order Issued by City.

BUT THREE DAYS OF GRACE.

All Sunday Downtown District Resounds with Blow of Hammer and Chisel.

Efforts to restore the skyline to State street were started yesterday. That is, to restore as much of it as is not properly intercepted by the two lines of towering buildings. All Sunday the sound of the hammer and chisel was heard while workmen were busy removing the big overhanging signs which were ordered removed by Commissioner of Public Works John Hanberg.

Three days of grace remain for the State street business men to pull in the offending signs. While many took advantage of Sunday, which is a little quieter than week days in State street, there still remains a lot of work for the sign removers. State street by night still shows some two dozen big electric insignias overhanging the street, vying with one another in attracting the eye of the pedestrians.

Big Signs Removed.

The Buck & Rayner drug store sign that hung across the corner at State and Madison streets was swung around to the left into Madison street. One of the most pretentious signs on the street that flashed red, white, and blue by turns at night, in front of the Lloyd department store, was hauled in yesterday by a corps of electricians with enough pullies and ladders to wreck a building. Part of it was carried away, and part was placed close against the building. Hillman's big electric sign that cut out a space of sky line about 4x16 feet, has faded away, and workmen removed the big electric sign of the Central drug store that heretofore has hung above the State street sidewalk, to a similar position around the corner in Washington street.

By evening the street appeared transformed. There was scarcely a sign left on the east side of the street from Adams street north to Lake street.

Wigglers There; All Signs Not Down.

But the wiggly snakes that creep about the novel electric sign of Dr. N. Von Schill, 146 State street, were on duty last evening, and the word "Berry's" appeared and disappeared on the sign board that projects out from the candy store at 180. Others who have not yet enforced the order to haul in the overhanging signs are:

FRUIT ARRIVES FROM HAWAII; BROUGHT AS AN EXPERIMENT.

Carload of Products of Sandwich Islands to Be Placed on Exhibition Here Today.

After a journey of eighteen days from the plantations of Hawaii, the carload of fruit brought here as an experiment under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Commerce arrived yesterday, and probably will be placed on exhibition today, near the State street bridge, at the Northwestern railroad freight terminal.

This is the first shipment of Hawaiian fruit to invade the interior of America. While the car was not opened last evening to ascertain the condition of the fruit, J. E. Higgins, the representative of the United States agricultural department's experiment station in the Hawaiian Islands, who is in charge of the car, believes the fruit stood the trip first rate.

The fruit will be disposed of here through the committee of the association named to conduct the display.

"We raise the best pineapples in the world in Hawaii," said Mr. Higgins. "I am sure the time is not far distant when the Hawaiian pineapples will be the favored variety on the markets of the central and western states. They are far superior to the Florida pineapples, which are the main source of supply here now. The pineapple plantations in Hawaii are growing rapidly. While now the annual acreage is 3,000, I predict that within two years it will be twice that."

MONEY SPENT ON GUM EXCEEDS COST OF MISSION.

Texas Bishop in Sermon Before President Calls Church $5,000,000 a Mere Pittance.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The Rt. Rev. James S. Johnston, Episcopal bishop of western Texas, in preaching on "Foreign and Domestic Missions" before President Roosevelt today, compared the "pittance" of $5,000,000 a year, which was all the church could collect for mission work, with the $60,000,000 he said was spent annually for chewing gum in the United States.

Oriental Rugs

Royal Kashans

We will take pleasure this week in showing ten Royal Kashan rugs, on display for the first time. We believe these rugs to be the masterpieces of the most skilled artist-weavers of Persia. In our judgment they are superior to any other Oriental Rugs now offered for sale. They contain more knots to each square inch, and the wool used for these knots is of the softest and most excellent quality, but the superiority of the Kashan rugs is more evident in their designs and combinations of color.

The designs, both in conception and in the execution of the minutest details, are simply wonderful. The color schemes are exquisite, combining on a soft cream or old rose background the richest blues, greens and many other beautiful shades. They afford an opportunity for exceedingly interesting study to those who appreciate high types of color harmonies. The general effect is soft, mellowed, and very silky. We invite every lover of the beautiful in art to come and enjoy an inspection of these specimens.

We have about 1,000 rugs in our Oriental Rug Department marked at reductions of 10 to 25% during this sale.

PIANO TONE

Is the Most Important Thing

TONE is at once the least tangible and the most important thing in a piano. It is like a man's character in this, that character has less to do with a man's appearance than is usually supposed. For, take two men, dress them alike, and let them answer certain set questions. Let one be an honest man through and through, and the other a scamp. In such a brief examination as we suggest, in many cases the scamp would be preferred.

So it is with piano tone. There are ways and means of making a piano possessing little or no tone sound very well during a brief test. An unmusical, commercial piano can be favored by the salesman trying to sell it so that only its best qualities will be revealed. Its weaknesses may be slurred over, and even the fact that its tone has no real depth may be hidden by various artful devices.

The importance of tone is so well recognized by those who make a living by selling pianos that it is not too much to say that there are numerous makes of pianos in which, if one individual instrument did possess a real musical tone, an expert would hesitate before accepting it, for it would be like finding a genuine diamond in a window full of paste jewels.

On the other hand, fortunately, there are makers whose pianos for fifty years have been synonyms for fine tone quality. Every instrument bearing their names not only possesses all the good qualities that it seems to have upon first examination, but is also sure to reveal further beauties upon a longer acquaintance.

It is the part of wisdom, therefore, to select a piano from one of the great, beyond question, standard makes.

We have never known any one purchasing a Steinway, Weber, Krakauer, or other leading piano from us to regret it. But on the other hand almost every day some one wishes to exchange a commercial piano bought under misapprehension for one of our standard instruments.

EXTRA SUMMER VALUES

Just now we are offering exceptionally fine new Uprights at $175, at $215, at $235 and at $250. These pianos are full standard size, of first-class workmanship and rank far ahead of the everyday piano.

CZAR RISKS LIFE TO PAY TRIBUTE.

Guarded by Troops He Faces Multitude on Way to Memorial Service.

ON SITE OF TRAGIC DEATH

Traffic on Neva Suspended and Extra Precautions Taken for Emperor's Safety.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 1.—The czar attended the consecration of a new church today, the impressive ceremony being in memory of the tragic death of his grandfather, Alexander II., who was assassinated in March, 1881, on the spot where the edifice was raised. Traffic on the River Neva was suspended and every precaution taken to insure the safety of the emperor. This is the czar's second visit to the city since "Red Sunday," Jan. 22, 1905.

The demonstration was intended to raise the loyalty of the army and people, and from the point of view of royalty's supporters was a success in every way, as no untoward incident occurred.

Gendarmes were stationed in every window facing the route over which the imperial procession passed, and owners of houses were forbidden to open windows under pain of a heavy fine. The banks of the Neva were lined with marine guards and torpedo boats patrolled the river.

Emperor Arrives in Yacht.

The imperial party arrived from Peterhof unannounced, not a single salute being fired during their whole stay. The emperor and his party disembarked from a yacht, landing at the Grand Duke Constantine's palace. Thence they proceeded the remainder of the way to the church in carriages.

Though the church faces the Nevsky prospect, it is conveniently reached from the Neva across the Mars field drill ground, where a new road, flanked by rows of flags, had been made for their majesties.

After two months of daily rains the sky cleared and the sun shone upon the brilliant scene of nearly 100 detachments of troops, with widely varying uniforms stationed along the line of march. The emperor's arrival was announced by cheers from the troops, the public looking on indifferently. The big church was bordered by platoons of cuirassiers, genadiers, and dragoons in multi-colored uniforms, waving plumes, busbecs, and silver breastplates.

After walking around the church and saluting the guards the emperor entered the edifice at the south door. The scene inside was one of great splendor, recalling the old time court balls. The emperor and the empress occupied the so-called patriarchs' place at the right of the altar, where they were visible only from the diplomatic loge. A score of grand dukes and grand duchesses encircled the imperial pair.

Premier Only Minister Present.

Premier Stolypin was the only minister to attend the ceremonies, all of the others being abroad. Mr. Riddle, the American ambassador, and Sir Arthur Nicolson, the British ambassador, and the civic element were absent.

The emperor seemed to be in excellent spirits, but the empress had the same careworn, sad look which has often been remarked. The emperor wore a simple Preobrajensky uniform with a dark blue tunic and trousers. Across his shoulders was the blue sash of St. Andrew. The empress was gowned in white silk and wore a white feather hat and a string of diamonds. She also wore the sash of St. Andrew. Both remained standing throughout the entire ceremony, which lasted three and a quarter hours, the empress slightly leaning on her parasol.

BADLY MUDDLED CLERGYMAN THINKS WEDDING IS BURIAL.

Commits Bride and Groom "to the Ground," Then Seeks to Baptize Them Before His Condition Is Seen.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Sept. 1.—An amazing scene is reported at a wedding at Isle Abbotte, a village near Ilminster, in Somerset. The vicar first ordered the bridegroom and his best man to stand up and then started to read the service. The bridegroom, Arthur Bart, stopped him and explained that the bride had not arrived.

When the bride arrived the vicar began reading words which they could not follow from the prayer book service. Presently, when the vicar said: "I commit these people to the ground; earth to earth," they saw that he was reading the burial service. The bride began weeping and the bridegroom expostulated with the vicar, whose condition he had just noticed.

The clergyman insisted on resuming the service and this time he began with: "I baptize these people with water——" The wedding party made him desist and the vicar sat down, while some of the members of the party secured bicycles and searched the countryside for a minister. They eventually got Archdeacon Chard, who conducted the marriage service after two hours' delay. The bishop of Exeter has expressed his regret at "the vicar's disgraceful conduct and condition."

IN STATE AT ST. ANNE'S, THOUSANDS VIEW REMAINS.

Impressive Funeral Services to Be Held in Honor of the Late Father Flannigan.

Hundreds of devout Catholics from all parts of Chicago made pilgrimages yesterday to St. Anne's church, Wentworth avenue and Garfield boulevard, where the body of Father P. M. Flannigan lay in state, and offered prayers and tribute to the memory of the well known and loved priest.

The sight was an unusual one and at times the full capacity of the church was taxed to accommodate the worshipers. The church was draped in the mourning colors, purple and white, all other decorations being omitted.

The services, which were simple in the extreme, were deeply impressive. Friends and parishioners of the dead priest wept softly about the altar, and among the throngs which passed down the aisles there were many tear dimmed eyes.

In the evening the office for the dead was chanted by the priests of the diocese, led by Bishop Muldoon. This morning at 7:30 o'clock mass will be said, which the children of the parish will attend. Solemn requiem high mass will be celebrated at 10:30 o'clock, but in accordance with the request of Father Flannigan no sermon or eulogy will be delivered. The casket will remain in the church until 5 o'clock and at 8 o'clock a special train will depart from the Chicago and Northwestern station conveying the body to Marquette, Mich., and accompanied by a number of Chicago priests. Solemn requiem high mass will be said Tuesday morning by Bishop Eis and interment will follow in the Marquette cemetery.

Devotee of One-Garment Costume Who Startled Passengers on Ocean Liner

Miss Eva Palmer. The Greek Costume.

Miss Eva Palmer, the wealthy young New York girl, who wore a single Greek garment and sandals—and nothing else—on the La Lorraine en route from France to the United States, and was a week's sensation, is one of a group of Americans and others resident in Paris who have decided to go through the remainder of their lives in the costume of ancient Greece, and to refuse to use corsets, stockings, or any tight fitting article of dress. When cool weather requires it, a cape is added. Two of the devotees recently attended the opera in London in the costume. Miss Palmer left the United States three years ago to study in Europe for the stage. Emma Calvé, the opera singer, is her chum. Her father, who was president of the Gramercy club of New York, died fifteen years ago. Her mother is now Mrs. Robert Abbe.

PERSIAN PREMIER IS SLAIN

Shot Down While Leaving Assembly Chamber in Teheran.

ONE ASSASSIN ENDS LIFE.

Bitter Feeling Against Minister Dates from Despotic Rule.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

TEHERAN, Sept. 1.—Mirza Ali Asghar Khan, who was the Persian premier and minister of the interior, was shot dead Saturday night while leaving the assembly chamber. He received five shots and died on the spot. A soldier and a Cossack also were killed and a member of the assembly shot in the leg. One of the assassins committed suicide, one was arrested, and the other escaped.

The effect of this news on the interior where a condition of anarchy prevails is such that it is doubtful if any Persian statesman can be induced to accept the vacant portfolio.

LIPTON COMING TO CHALLENGE?

Steam Yacht Erin Believed to Be on Way Across the Atlantic Carrying Owner with Eleventh Hour Bid.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 1.—The mystery attending the movements of Sir Thomas Lipton and party aboard the steam yacht Erin, is a topic of discussion among yachtsmen here. The Erin remained at Kingstown from Sunday last till Thursday, when at midnight she steamed northward, supposedly for Dublin. She is not at the latter place and the belief now is that she has sailed for New York.

It is believed it is the intention of Sir Thomas to challenge at the eleventh hour for the America cup. His yachting friends have been trying to dissuade him from doing this, but he has unbounded faith that he will succeed this time.

It is suggested that Shamrock IV. be christened the Four Leaf Shamrock, which is Ireland's emblem of good luck.

Further Fighting at Casablanca Now Considered Improbable.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Sept. 1.—According to a dispatch from the correspondent of the Daily Mail at Casablanca further serious fighting there is improbable.

The tribesmen, he says, have had enough, and have asked the influential Sheik Maeqeo to entreat British Vice Consul Spinney at Mazagan to treat between themselves and the French. Mr. Spinney has taken the sheik's messages to Casablanca.

The sheik will be brought to Casablanca immediately.

SIXTEEN RESCUED FROM SEA PERIL.

Carried Out by Strong Tide, Occupants of Cutter Are Taken Aboard Tug.

COAL PRICES SENT HIGHER

New Yorkers, After Facing 25 Cent Raise, Told Others May Follow.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE. New York, Sept. 1.

Carried to Sea by Tide; Sixteen Men Saved.

A ten oared cutter containing sixteen men of the First battalion, New Jersey Naval Reserve, put out from Hoboken yesterday afternoon to make a trip to Sandy Hook. Near midnight Capt. George W. Gibbs of the tugboat Kimpland found the cutter drifting with the tide three and a half miles off Sandy Hook.

Capt. Gibbs heard faint cries coming from the darkness and changed his course to make for the spot. As he drew nearer he made out the outlines of the cutter and saw that it was crowded with men.

The tug ran alongside and members of the crew dropped lines and hooks overboard to the men in the boat. The rescued men were scarcely able to climb on deck, so weak were they from constant fighting against the currents.

The men said that after they had left Hoboken the tide became too strong for them and they had been carried out of their course. When darkness fell they had tried to signal passing craft with their lantern, but had failed. Despairing of being picked up, they had taken the last chance of signaling the Kimpland, when their lantern was doused out by a wave.

Boost in Coal Prices; More Expected.

New York consumers have been notified by their coal dealers that they will have to pay 25 cents more per ton for small sizes of anthracite when they get ready to fill their bins for the winter. It is likely that the price of soft coal also will begin to slide upward in the near future, and that the present 25 per cent increase on steam sizes of anthracite will increase.

Black Hand Kidnaps Little Girl.

Wide eyed with terror, Nicola, the 9 year old son of Pietro Floirntino, a well to do baker, rushed into his home at 343 East Eleventh street today and gasped out that his 4 year old sister had been kidnaped by a black hand gang. Nicola told his parents that he and Louisa were playing near the street corner about 11:30 o'clock in the morning when a covered wagon drove up. He said that three men, all Italians, sprang out. One of them held the horse while another grabbed little Louisa and passed her along to the third man, who sprang into the wagon with her. Then all three drove west on Ninth street at top speed. No trace of them has been found.

Walking Delegate Caught with Graft.

At the meeting today of the Central Federated union the general executive board was instructed to make an investigation of the charges that the walking delegate of one of the building unions had demanded of a prominent man who is having a residence built $1,000 to settle a strike, had scaled down the demand to $250, and when he received that amount in cash demanded more. Charles Cyr of the Brotherhood of Carpenters said that the business agent referred to had been caught with the money in his possession.

The burglar who was shot early yesterday morning by Charles Verrel after he had tried to murder the entire Verrel family by turning on the gas in the flat in which they lived in Eighty-fourth street was today identified as Henry Hoffman by his wife. The police have been searching for Hoffman, believing him to be the murderer of Sophy Heckler, who was killed in the residence of her employer, Leo Mack, in Sixty-second street, Aug. 3.

THINK LIBERTY STATUE 'JOSS'

Chinese Sailors Do Homage Coming Up New York Harbor.

MAKE 750 STICK OFFERING.

Head Celestial of Crew on First Trip Conducts Ceremonies.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Mistaking the statue of liberty in the harbor here for the American "No. 1 top side joss," thirty-seven Chinese sailors, who visited this port for the first time last evening, burned 750 joss sticks in reverence before the strange shrine.

When the Warrack liner Braemer, from China and Japan, slipped through the dusk of Saturday evening to anchor below Liberty island, Wah Yu, oldest of the Chinese crew, rushed aft and chattered down the hatch. A few seconds later the thirty-seven Chinamen piled out on deck in an excited state.

Gets Supply of Joss Sticks.

They lined up at the port rail while Wah Yu disappeared in the direction of the "Temple," which they had rigged up in the stern and where joss sticks are kept continually burning. After a short interval, Wah Yu appeared carrying many joss sticks. These he distributed among the crew, pointing impressively meanwhile in the direction of the statue of liberty, looming large in the sunset glow.

Wah Yu, the venerable one, as the oldest on board, had been assigned as priest for the crew. Wah Yu appeared with a light, and soon all the Chinamen had about twenty joss sticks apiece burning.

Homage to American God.

"Him number one top side joss," said Hi Yen, the quartermaster known to the English officers as "Juggins," as he answered the look of inquiry in Capt. Saxby's eyes and pointed toward the statue of liberty. Then it came out that the Chinamen, believing that Bartholdi's statue was the American god, had gathered upon the deck to do honor.

POWERS CAN NAME MURDERER OF WILLIAM GOEBEL, HE SAYS.

Statement of Kentucky's Democratic Nominee Against Pardon Arouses Wrath—New Light on Crime.

Georgetown, Ky., Sept. 1.—Goaded by the statement here yesterday in an opening speech of S. W. Hager, democratic nominee for governor, that he would not pardon Caleb Powers if convicted for conspiracy in the murder of William Goebel, Powers tonight issued a written statement saying at last he had learned the name of the man who murdered Goebel and could point him out.

Powers says that the man who killed Goebel is not Jim Howard, who is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary on that charge.

"The time has come," said Powers, "when my name must not be dragged into political campaigns to be used to aid one candidate or prove a disadvantage to the other."

Powers says immediately after the next governor of the state is elected he will demand a trial, and will aid in bringing the real murderer to justice.

GOTHAM WONDERS ENTHRALL PRINCE

Royal Swede Lingers Over the Joys of New York and Coney Island.

GIVES PARTY ON FYLGIA.

Foregoes West Point Visit for Trip Into Tenement Quarter of Big City.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Lieut. Wilhelm Bernadotte gave a party this afternoon aboard the chunky, white painted cruiser Fylgia, which lies at anchor among the neat brass and white enamel yachts in the North river off Eightieth street.

It is "your royal highness, Prince Wilhelm," with the doffed hat and bended knee when he goes ashore at Newport or Coney Island, but on board he is the second son of the crown prince of Sweden, and merely a lieutenant on the Fylgia's quarter deck.

Prominent Swedes Present.

Most of the important Swedish citizens of New York who have helped make things pleasant for the prince during his stay here were his guests at an informal luncheon in the commander's cabin. The Swedish minister, M. de Lagercrantz, Mme. de Lagercrantz, and Miss Ava de Lagercrantz were there, with Consul and Mrs. Magnus Clarholm, John Aspegren, president of the Swedish chamber of commerce, and Mrs. Aspegren; Director A. Akerlind, H. Routerdahl, the marine artist; Axel Josephson, the Rev. Dr. M. Stolpe of the Gustavus Adolphus Swedish church in East Twenty-second street; Commander Lindburg, and a few others. During the conversation at luncheon Prince Wilhelm had something to say about the way New York struck him.

The two things that seemed to interest him most were the dizzy ascent of the forty story Singer building and the tremendous crowd which buffeted him on Saturday night at Coney Island.

He asked somebody how many Swedish people there are in Greater New York.

"Perhaps 80,000," he was told.

"And how many were at Coney Island to see me?"

"At least 80,000," they assured him. The sensation of being caught in a jam, fairly carried off his feet, and swept away, as he was Saturday night, tickled the prince hugely.

Relic Hunters Loot Ship of Prince.

Following the custom established when the Japanese squadron and the duke of the Abruzzi's Italian cruiser visited New York, it seemed as if every visitor wanted to carry away a souvenir.

Wineglasses, dishes, a sailor's cap, an officer's sword and scabbard—in fact practically everything portable lying around loose aboard the ship was taken. One enthusiastic souvenir hunter even carried away the breechblock latch of the big gun in the forward barbette. It is estimated that 10,000 people visited the cruiser yesterday and today and while the chief engineer believes his engines are still intact, the weight of the articles taken by relic hunters was almost great enough to make a change in the registered displacement of the ship.

Mullin Is Fearfully Wild, but Is Accorded Great Support by Leaders.

BY SY.

Despite the most wretched support a major league pitcher ever stood up in front of, Doc White, by the wiles of his slender left wing, defeated the fighting Tigers from Detroit almost alone and unaided yesterday in the first game of one of the season's most crucial series. Score: 3 to 1.

So perfect was White's control over the league leaders, so effective the anesthetic the dentist kept shoving under their noses with every ball he pitched, that their efforts with the stick were extremely sickly and their struggles kept getting fainter and fainter to the end. They were not able to give the White Sox more than an occasional difficult chance. In fact, Doc found out early in the game he could not depend much upon that support of his. Consequently he wound the ball into new sinuosities, undreamed of outside the covers of a treatise on spherical trigonometry. He struck out eight of the proud leaders, humiliating Capt. Coughlin three times and the prize youngster Ty Cobb thrice also. Doc had to use a variety of foolers on Coughlin to produce so much wind jamming, but with Cobb a constant repetition of a single puzzling drop struck out the vaunted slugger three times in succession.

Fumble Gives One Run.

Three hits were all White would allow, and except for the companionship which two of these swats showed for one of the Sox fumbles it would have been a coat of whitewash for Detroit all the way.

Mullin's wildness proved his downfall, for an exceedingly bad spell in the sixth forced two Sox runs across the plate without the aid of anything except a abiding faith and patience on their part. Eight times in all Mullin passed Sox to first base, and four of these passes came in the same round. Yet as between White and Mullin the verdict would have been much more pronounced in Doc's favor if he had been given the same support the Tigers handed out to their star. For the Sox bagged their first run by clean hitting, and barring a horseshoe double play, due to crossed Sox wires, there would have been more than one run scored in the fourth on two singles and a steal and a two bagger.

Enormous Crowd on Hand.

To the tremendous crowd, estimated all the way from 21,000 to 25,000 by habitués of the park, which sweltered in the dog day heat, packed like sardines in every available space in the stands and overflowing in unruly hordes, it looked as if Mullin had taken a Turkish bath. Perhaps the excess perspiration from his noble brow filled his eyes until he could not locate the direction of the plate, or perhaps it was the devilish racket turned loose by the board of trade band and rooters. Something, at any rate, interfered with the big fellow's aim, while White, apparently at home in the oven, was as cool as cracked ice, donned a sweater at the end of each baking on the slab, and pitched throughout the game without allowing a pass. Shorthanded for pitchers, Manager Jennings could not afford to waste another Joe on the game in advance of today's double bill, consequently kept Mullin at his task. He tried to give him a better and bigger target by changing catchers in the middle of the scrap, but the ruse worked all in Chicago's favor. Mullin grew worse instead of better.

The Sox ought to have cinched the game in the opening round. Hahn and Fielder Jones worked Mullin for passes. Donohue advanced them with a sacrifice. Rohe spoiled the scheme with a slap to Mullin, on which Hahn was cut off and run to death. Davis smashed a fly to right. Cobb tore in after it, misjudging the ball badly, but discovered his mistake soon enough to back up and catch the the ball just as it was going over out of reach. Then for two rounds the Sox were retired easily.

Makes Up for His Own Error.

Only six Tigers faced White in the first two innings, but in the third Davis made the only excusable error of the day, a short throw on a long shot from deep short field. It gave Payne a life. O'Leary sacrificed him to second. Davis cut off Mullin's rap and fired it to Tannehill, cutting down Payne at third and averting danger. The sotto voiced Jones forced Mullin out.

In the fourth Donohue led with the first hit of the game. It was a scratch carom off Mullin's mitt out of Downs' reach. Rohe tried one bunt, then "Jiggs" switched to "hit and run," but Rohe didn't. The result was a pop bunt which Payne caught, and he easily doubled up Donohue, who had dashed for second. That mishap proved costly, for Davis followed with a single to center, then stole second. Dougherty made up for the blunder he was yet to make by smashing a double through left center, scoring Davis with the initial run. Tannehill struck out.

Score in the Sixth.

Not a hit did the Tigers get for five warm innings. Mullin went out in the sixth, then Davy Jones uncorked the first swat off White, a rainbow into left. Dougherty carelessly let the ball get through him, giving the swatter an extra base. Coughlin responded to the emergency with a Texas leaguer over second, tying up the score. Bill reached second on the throw home, and Crawford tried to score him with a terrific smash far over Fielder Jones' head. The manager sprinted back and pulled it down, but it was so far away Coughlin had time to double back to second, then advance to third on the catch. Cobb struck out.

In their half the Sox won on patience. One was out when Donohue singled again and reached second on a wild pitch. Then Mullin passed Rohe and Davis, filling the bases. Dougherty was all out of patience, and popped the first ball pitched to O'Leary. But Tannehill slowly worked the wild man for a base on balls, forcing in Donohue, and Sullivan repeated the performance, forcing home Rohe. White hit to O'Leary, ending the merry-go-round.

Those two runs proved sufficient, for White did not allow a hit and Rohe's muff in the seventh to do any damage, and disposed of three Tigers in a row in the ninth. Score:

STRAW HATS OF WHITE SOX PERISH AT APPOINTED TIME.

All but Jones, Rohe, and Sullivan Lose Their Summer Headgear in Night Trip from Cleveland.

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.

A mutilation committee, consisting of Walsh and Smith, put half a dozen straw hats out of business on the trip from Cleveland Saturday night. There is a rule among athletes that all thatches of the summer variety must be called in before Sept. 1. Those of the Sox who forgot the rule went home as good as bareheaded from the train yesterday morning.

The committee on mutilation waited until the victims were asleep. The hats were carried into the smoking compartment and carved to suit the taste of the artists with the knives. After removing the top of Mike Welday's lid Smith whittled it into the semblance of a crown. Nothing was left of the brim but a small peak in front. Hub Hart's hat was returned with the brim entirely absent. He looked like a British soldier in the remnant.

Donohue's soft straw slouch was unraveled. Jigger tucked in the loose ends and wore it home. People who did not recognize the noted athlete figured he had been up against something somewhere. Fiene's top piece was remodeled to resemble a buzzsaw. Having nothing else to wear, Louis sawed his way to the boarding house.

Cheerful Charles Hickman stood in with the conspirators, but at the last minute he decided not to trust them. On going to bed Hick hid the hat between his feet and pulled a blanket over the combination. Smith made two ruthless quests of the bunk. Along toward midnight Hick grew hot and restless and kicked the blanket away. There was nothing left of the hat when Walsh and Smith got done whittling. Pat Dougherty said he could lick the man who chewed the roof off his hat. Nothing doing because Pat couldn't locate the guilty party.

Jones, Rohe, and Sullivan saved their bonnets. Sully put his in the pillow. Rohe took the bunk apart and concealed his hat in the little locker under the seat. Jones had his locked up in a suit case. He sat on the hat from 8 until 10 a. m., at which hour the train reached Chicago.

The "open season" for straw hats was observed by the Cubs on their trip from Cincinnati, and a large crop was bagged, because the Cubs were returning from a long eastern trip on which the majority of them wore straw lids. During the night a sharp knife was used to cut the lid off the crown of each hat, only a narrow hinge being left at the rear, so that the wind could lift the lids suddenly on leaving the train.

The perpetration was discovered, however, in time to repair some of the damage by a copious use of adhesive plaster, dug out of Trainer McCormick's kit, and the Cubs were able to reach their homes without exciting undue comment.

One hat which escaped the wreck belonged to the Cubs' official scorer, who served notice before climbing into his bunk that the destruction of his lid meant the loss of three base hits for every player in the car during the rest of the season, while the elimination of that particular lid from the rule meant an additional base hit to the record of each man. Several Cubs offered to guard that lid with their lives.

NOTES OF THE WHITE SOX GAME.

That's one crimp in the Tigers' lead.

Two games today in the battle with the leaders, the first to be called at 10:30 a. m. and the second at the usual afternoon hour.

Yesterday's was the tenth game the Sox have won from Detroit this year, while the Tigers have won only three from Chicago.

White was the whole works in the ninth, taking no chances. He struck out Cobb for the third time, grabbed Rossman's bounder and tossed it to "Jiggs," then caught Downs' pop fly himself for the final out.

It is not often a team can make five errors on the easiest kind of chances and win by the low score of 3 to 1. Without White's masterly control and that long row of strikeouts it would have been a different tale.

With one out in the seventh Downs made the third hit off White. Schmidt struck out. O'Leary hit to Tannehill, who shot the ball to Rohe to force Downs and retire the side. Rohe muffed the throw, but Slugger Mullin skied to Jones.

South side rooters who had been away on vacations and saw their first league game in weeks yesterday, had to be assured they were on the south side lot instead of the west when they heard the strenuous rooting led by the board of trade corps.

Pitcher Lon Schroeder and Frank Green of the Burlington (Iowa) league club, who have been purchased by President Comiskey, are likely to join the Sox in a few days. They may be taken on the crucial eastern trip, which starts about the middle of the month.

Dougherty took a nap on his popup in the second inning. Payne misjudged the ball and, seeing him on foul ground, Pat did not run to first. The ball came down fair, however. Payne failed to touch it at all, then it bounded foul. Even if the ball had hit Payne, making it a fair ball, Dougherty could not have reached first, he started so late.

The crowd caused considerable delay at the start and Manager Jennings produced more by trying to warm up another pitcher out in front of the crowd when Mullin was so wild in the first inning. Umpire Hurst ordered the warming pan moved back of the stand, as the rules provide, but Jennings and other Tigers kicked in offensive manner against the enforcement of one of the most generally observed rules.

All except the center field stands were packed an hour before time to start the game. The remainder of the spectators had to wedge themselves in somewhere or swarm on to the field, where they gave the police a busy three hours' work keeping them from overrunning everything. Before play started some of the quarter seaters broke open the gate in center field and tumbled out in confusion, but the human stream finally was stopped.

PRESIDENT PULLIAM SAYS "HOT WEATHER CAUSES SCRAPPINESS AMONG PLAYERS."

LIVELY FIGHT IS STARTED IN THE THREE EYES LEAGUE.

President Holland Transfers Dubuque Franchise to Davenport—Deposed Club Refuses to Accept Ultimatum.

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—President Holland of the Three Eyes league today transferred the Dubuque franchise to Davenport, and assigned the league secretary, Herbert Miller, to take charge in the new town. This action, it was declared tonight, is likely to cut short the career of the minor league, which was scheduled to close its season on Sept. 15.

The Dubuque club evidently means to fight the matter out to an end. The team played the game here with the local team today, under the protest of President Holland and with Secretary Rowland in control. After the game Rowland took the Dubuque club's share of the receipts.

Rowland tonight deposited for Dubuque to play two games with Cedar Rapids at Dubuque tomorrow, according to schedule. On the other hand, President Holland has ordered Cedar Rapids to remain at home and play the series there. In the event Dubuque fails to put in an appearance at Cedar Rapids the umpire expects to forfeit the game to the home team. Dubuque also has been ordered to play the Clinton games scheduled for Dubuque at Clinton and those with Rock Island at Davenport.

From present indications, if the northern teams stick together and defy Holland, all games will be declared forfeited or no contests, and the breaking up of the pennant race is imminent. Rock Island has taken a position by refusing to turn over today's receipts to the league to Secretary Herbert Miller, who appealed to the police to help him collect, and was turned down. Dubuque will appeal to the national commission.

Secretary Rowland last night offered Holland a check to cover any deficit Dubuque might show at the end of the season, but it was refused. The charge is freely made here that certain southern clubs have hatched a plot to precipitate a row and break up the league so that they may form a new organization next year, with Quincy, Danville, Jacksonville, and another town substituted for the present northern cities.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 1.—Joseph Briskey, right fielder of the Savannah team in the South Atlantic league, broke his neck at Tybee island this afternoon by diving into shallow water. Other bathers saw him as he lay dying on the bottom, but he had announced that he was going to make a long stay under water, and they thought nothing of the matter until some minutes had passed. Then they drew him up to find him dead. Briskey leaves a wife and a 3 weeks' old baby in Houston, Tex.

Artesians Win a Great Uphill Battle from the Oak Leas, 10 to 9.

LEAD OF 8 TO 0 OVERCOME.

Wrangling with the Umpire Mars Struggle; Results on Other Diamonds.

Artesians defeated the Oak Leas in an old fashioned slugging match at Artesian park yesterday, by the score of 10 to 9.

The game was marred by constant wrangling over Umpire McCormick's decisions. The Oak Leas had the home team beaten, 8 to 0, in the fifth. Kelly's men then filled the bases and Sullivan's error on Reifs's hard rap started the scoring for the home team. The Artesians tied the score twice and Bartell won the game by coming home from third on a bad return to the plate by Armbruster. Score:

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.

When those ridiculous Cardinals found they could lick the Cubs they had to go and abuse a sacred privilege. Must have thought it funny to see Messrs. Slagle, Sheckard, and Schulte galloping around with their tongues hanging out the hottest day of the season.

The score was 7 to 2 and the foe accumulated the whole blooming business in the last round. If we are not shy on statistics that is more runs than the Cardinals have made in the last five or six weeks. They fell upon E. Reulbach when he least expected it and batted out seven tallies with eight hits, aided and abetted by a brace of errors. This is the first game the Cardinals have won from the west siders this season and Mr. McCloskey desired to burn that fact into his intellect with large and vociferous figures. Of course, the Cardinals expected to lose, as is their habit, but when Mr. Reulbach blew up the juicy fragments fell at their feet.

Peerless Leader on Hand, Too.

What makes the explosion all the harder to bear was the presence of the peerless leader urging the Cubs on to renewed violence. Mr. Chance came back from the sulphur baths much refreshed in body and spirit. The populace extended some glad greeting, and, under his able direction, Mr. Reulbach had the enemy bottled up with four mangy singles in eight stanzas. Besides this excellent showing Edward had whipped eight Cardinals. His fooler was working fine, and the speed on his fast one caused P. Moran's mitt to emit loud and intermittent pops. The long rest at home seemed to have placed Edward's technique at a higher voltage than at any time this season. In the language of the ancients, Edward had the goods.

But all at once the big German backslid after sliding forward in the eighth ultimo. With Reulbach on third and one out, Schulte skied to Murray. His expert chuck to Perspiring Pete, alias Noonan, doubled our pitcher at the rubber after a most difficult and amazing slide. Edward skated along on his right ear and shoulder. The pitching arm was doubled under his body for a roller and he traveled quite a way in that horrifying attitude. The general supposition is Mr. Reulbach scrambled his technique and sang froid. In other words, he gargled something of vast importance to his profession. As nearly as can be determined these mishaps overtook our fellow townsman.

Something Happens.

Konetchy, who had spent a sour afternoon striking out, peeled off a single in the ninth. Hopkins doubled to left. There was no loud demand for a two bagger at this stage, but Mr. H. butted in with one just the same. Holly bumped to Tinker. He held the athlete with the sneezy name at third base, but heaved the ball high over the head of the peerless leader. Konetchy scored and Holly went to second. Murray's long fly to left brought in Hopkins and Holly moved up to third. Evers claimed Holly left second ahead of the catch, but Emslie would not allow the claim. Bob couldn't see everything that was going on.

The score being tied, Hostetter whaled an exasperating single. He chopped the ball down and it bounded over the bean of Tinker, standing in close to nail Mr. Holly at the plate. On went the sphere to left field and Holly registered run No. 8. Noonan pasted a belated safety and McGlynn tore off his third successive swat to right. Hostetter had paused at third, but when he observed that Mr. Schulte had juggled the ball, Hos, old boy, came on in. By this time the patriots were beginning to sit up and notice. Byrne's pop fly to left talked Noonan, who was obliged to get off the circuit to make room for others. Barry dropped a safety in center, on which Byrne was thrown out, scrambling back to second.

Konetchy's Blood Is Up.

Konetchy's Greek blood was now boiling. He rose up for the second time in that round and slapped a sassy double to right. The wallop passed between Slagle and Schulte and on to the fence. McGlynn and Barry sped home. Hopkins skied to Schulte and the sad spectacle came to an ignominious end.

Stoney McGlynn, the Coal and Iron cop from York, Pa., handed the Cubs the hook. His own careless demeanor made the two runs possible in the fourth. Aside from this round the cop was happily situated. To him belongs the unique distinction of landing one Cub scalp in the Cardinal camp. He subdued the record breakers with seven hits and his control was perfect.

The Cubs came near counting in the second. Chance singled and was forced by Hofman. McGlynn's throw to nip Artie off first went askew and that rapid athlete went around to third. Tinker popped to short. Evers blazed a liner past first, which Konetchy reached and smothered in his mitt.

In the fourth Sheckard singled and was wild pitched to second. Schulte sacrificed. Chance rapped to Holly and Sheckard beat the throw home. The peerless leader stole second. Hofman skied to center. Tinker lined a safety to left. McGlynn got in front of Murray's throw and then side stepped it for Noonan. Perspiring Pete was not looking for that move. The ball rolled on, Chance scored and Tinker reached third. Evers was tossed out by Byrne.

Cubs' Rally Futile.

Following the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in the Cardinal ninth the peerless leader combed a double. Hofman tapped to the cop for an out. Tinker's out, second to first, sent Chance to third. Evers flied to Konetchy and the proud Cardinals dispersed. Score:

NOTES OF THE CUBS.

On again, off again, to be gone until next Sunday. Cubs and Cardinals may double at St. Louis instead of playing morning and afternoon.

Manager McCloskey has signed Pitcher Bugs Raymond, well known in Chicago semi-pro circles and the south. Raymond should do well at St. Louis. There is no city in the world he would esteem more unless it be Milwaukee.

During the absence of the team Charley Kuhn gathered half a barrel of pebbles the rain washed out of the field.

Reulbach had splendid control. The only pass was to Holly in the sixth, and he was forced out at the going by Jack Barry.

Heinie Zimmerman, the Wilkesbare phenom, performed some at practice to let the folks get a line on him. He is a big, active chap.

Mr. Rutherford Cock, the polite ticket seller, flashed his ice cream pantaletter, which have been seen but five times in any ball yard this season.

Pat Moran and Otis will attend to the catching this week in the games at St. Louis and Pittsburg. Pat expects to make at least two home runs, one in each city.

J. Kling, star backstop of the Cubs, did not make the journey to St. Louis. Besides a number of games he caught a heavy cold at Boston, and at Brooklyn he wrenched his spine. The combination has placed Nolsy John in position to enjoy some needed repose.

Jake Beckley has sent word by Jack McCarthy that he is making two bases on hunts for the Kansas City club these days. Jake slides half way to first and goes to second under cover of the dust he kicks up. Old Eagle Eye always was a great hand for pulling off smooth tricks.

While the Cardinals were at Pittsburg the Greek citizens of that city bestowed a large floral piece upon Mr. Konetchy. The fact that he is a Greek citizens of that city bestowed a large floral piece upon Mr. Konetchy. The fact that he is a Pole did not prevent the exiles from accepting the tribute. The new man handles himself well at first base, so the flowers were not wasted.

Double Header at Cincinnati Results in Defeat of Reds—Scores, Six to One and Two to Two.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 1.—Pittsburg won one game and tied in the second of the double header this afternoon. In both contests the visitors scored in the final inning. Weimer, who had been pitching well in the first game, was benched in the seventh inning for disputing a decision. Smith, who succeeded him, was hit hard in the ninth inning. Darkness stopped the second game at the end of the seventh inning. Scores:

VICTORY FOR RIVER FORESTS.

Trim the Gunthers by a Score of 5 to 2 on Errors in the Third Inning.

River Forest won the championship of the traveling teams in the Park Owners' association by defeating the Gunthers by the score of 5 to 2 at Gunther park yesterday. Scarritt's men got a substantial lead in the third, scoring three runs on a single, a pass, and a whole lot of loose playing. Both twirlers were hit hard, but brilliant support, outside of the third, kept down the score. Score:

KEENE'S WINNINGS $309,631 TO DATE.

Wealthy New Yorker Likely to Surpass World-Record for Turf Earnings.

ALL STAKES AND PURSES.

Colin the Main Factor; Leading Events to Come at Sheepshead Bay.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The success of James R. Keene's stable this year has been remarkable. He has won not only the Futurity, the Saratoga Special, and other rich 2 year old stakes with Colin but he also has captured the Brooklyn handicap with Superman, the Brighton handicap with Peter Pan, who has been victorious in other important races, too, and the Great Republic stakes with Ballot.

Mr. Keene's winnings in stakes and purses to date amount to $309,631, with three months of the eastern campaign left. This sum breaks all previous records on the American turf, the best previous figures being $279,458, won by Mr. Keene in 1903, the year that Domino was the reigning sensation and went through the season without suffering a defeat.

The world's record for a year's winnings is $326,335, held by Edmond Blanc, whose horses corralled this amount in 1904. If the present luck of the Keene stable continues to the end of the season, it is almost sure Blanc's record, made on European tracks, will be surpassed. Last year Mr. Keene's horses won more than $200,000, while in 1905 the earnings were about $150,000. In the last five years this great racing establishment has won something more than $1,000,000.

Colin Biggest Winner.

Domino, as a 2 year old, won $191,790 for Mr. Keene, a record that is not likely to be beaten for some time to come. But Colin, at that, is the biggest money winner of the year, with $93,380 to his credit, which puts him ahead of Peter Pan, who earned $85,240 for his owner up to the time he injured himself at the Bay last month. The other good winners in the Keene barn are Ballot, with close to $36,500; Superman, with about $16,000; Restigouche, and Court Dress.

All were bred at Castleton stud, Colin, Peter Pan, and Superman being by the famous Commando, now dead, a son of Domino.

Colin's engagements at Sheepshead Bay are the Flatbush stakes, seven furlongs, to be run next Saturday, and the Great Eastern handicap, six furlongs, scheduled for a week later. According to the weight requirements, Colin will pick up 120 pounds, while H. P. Whitney's Bar None, a maiden, will get in with only 105 pounds, which may prove a severe test for the Keene champion, considering Bar None's excellent performance in the Futurity.

It is doubtful whether Colin will start in the Great Eastern or not, as Handicapper Vosburgh is sure to put a heavy burden on his back for that event. The champion has other engagements at Gravesend and Belmont park, where he probably will wind up his campaign and then go into winter quarters at the Bay. Already the turf sharps are predicting Colin will sweep all before him as a 3 year old and will eclipse the record of the immortal Sysonby.

Racing for This Week.

There will be plenty of fine racing at the Bay this week. On Tuesday the Partridge stakes, for 2 year olds, six furlongs, on the turf, is one feature, while the Dolphin stakes, for 3 year olds, one mile and a furlong, is another. On Wednesday the Great Filly stakes, at six furlongs, Futurity course, will be decided, with such eligibles as Hail Sovereign, Aimee C., Bouquet, Julia Powell, Lady Winifred, Meggs Hill, Masquerade, Polly Witts, Adriana, and Stamina. Another feature for the same day is the Flying handicap, for 3 year olds, at six furlongs, main track, with Dinna Ken, Demund, Oraculum, McCarter, Dashaway, Court Dress, Veil, Okenite, W. H. Daniel, and Temaceo possible starters. The Dash stakes, for 2 year olds, five furlongs, Futurity course, and the Reaper stakes, for 3 year olds, one mile and three-sixteenths, are fixtures for Thursday, while on Friday the Turf handicap at a mile and three-sixteenths on the grass will be run.

In addition to the $20,000 Century stakes, weight for age, one mile and a half, will prove an attraction, and may be won by Keene's Ballot, which has McCarter, Frank Gill, Ironsides, Sir Huon, The Quail, Hoscher, and others to beat. Peter Pan is also eligible for the Century, but he is in temporary retirement. The Great Autumn steeplechase is another magnet for Saturday.

MANY RING BOUTS ON CARD TODAY.

Neary-Tancel Contest at Milwaukee Considered the Leading Feature.

BOTH BOYS ARE MIXERS.

Gardner and Fitzpatrick at Fort Wayne; O'Keefe and Thompson at Vancouver.

Boxing Events Today.

Eddie Tancel vs. Charley Neary at Milwaukee.
Jimmy Gardner vs. Dick Fitzpatrick at Fort Wayne.
Jack O'Keefe vs. Maurice Thompson at Vancouver.
Joe Thomas vs. Young Ketchell at Ocean Grove, Cal.
Young Peter Jackson vs. Terry Mustain at Goldfield, Nev.
Tommy Sullivan vs. Billy Papke at Lawrence, Mass.
Young Erlenborn vs. Jimmy Walsh at Chelsea, Mass.

Today will be one of activity for the fighters, contests of interest being scheduled in various parts of the country.

The contest in which Chicagoans are most interested is that between Charley Neary and Eddie Tancel at Milwaukee. Neary is well known all over the country, and Tancel has been coming to the front rapidly. The two boys are sluggers, and the contest is expected to be a give and take affair from the start, with the probability of a knockout before the end of the scheduled ten rounds is reached.

Entirely aside from the immediate monetary consideration at stake, the bout means much to each of the principals in the way of future engagements. A victory over Neary would put Tancel in great demand among the big purse givers of the west, and the local boy will not leave any chance unaccepted to earn the decision.

The contest between Indian Joe Greeg and Unk Russell at Milwaukee also will be an inducemeent to the large number which will go from this city to witness the contests.

Other well known Illinois fighters have engagements today, Billy Papke meeting Tommy Sullivan at Lawrence, Mass., while Jack O'Keefe and Maurice Thompson hook up at Vancouver, B. C. O'Keefe has been in the far west for some time. He is now under the management of Con Strothers, well known in this section several years ago because of his successful connection with baseball. O'Keefe has two or three other matches in view, and if he wins today over Thompson the Vancouver managers will try to bring Jimmy Britt to Vancouver to meet Jack.

Jimmy Gardner and Dick Fitzpatrick undoubtedly will put up a lively scrap at Fort Wayne, where the boxing game is now on the boom. Gardner has settled in the big Indiana town and will do his best to make himself solid with his new townspeople.

TREMBLE BEATS 'GRIFF' JONES.

Dozen Sheriffs Follow Fighters on Steamboat, but They Land and Battle in Wisconsin.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 1.—A dozen Minnesota sheriffs boarded a steamboat carrying two prizefighters, which left here this morning, determined to prevent the pulling off of a match that had been scheduled to take place somewhere between Minneapolis and this city. The boat dropped down the Mississippi river and a landing was made on the Wisconsin side, where the fight took place while the Minnesota sheriffs looked on powerless to prevent the contest. The fight was between Ben Tremble of St. Paul and "Griff" Jones, a Minneapolis negro. Tremble was given the decision in the fourth round.

LARGEST 2 CENT CIRCULATION IN THE WORLD.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1907.

BANISHING THE WHISTLE.

The decree of banishment for the conductor's whistle pronounced by the management of the Chicago City railway company is a gratifying indication of progress. No more will the nervous man or the timid woman be agitated and nerve racked by the shrill sound of the whistle blown into the ear by the collector of fares some yards distant from the bell rope. Mature deliberation has reached the conclusion that whistles, however necessary for other purposes, are out of place in regulating the movement of the modern street car; they will be done away with, therefore, as a noisy nuisance and as having passed their day of usefulness.

There is, moreover, a cheerful significance in the abolishment of the whistle. It is a confession that the evils which led to its adoption are at an end and that the promised good times are at hand. In the old days of frequent trailers and infrequent trains, when hapless passengers were herded and jostled about in their natural impatience to reach their homes, the conductor was usually out of reach of the bell rope. It was necessary to provide a whistle for him not merely to blow into unoffending ears but to control the operations of the gripman. The banishment of this whistle is a fair promise that the days of crowding and jostling are over, that cars will run with commendable frequency, that the conductor will have plenty of room for the exercise of his official functions, and that a musical bell will perform all the offices of the unearthly screech.

That which has begun so auspiciously on the south side may be adopted advantageously in other quarters of the city. A whistle is an excellent device wherewith to warn an approaching farmer at a country railway crossing, but it has no excuse for service in a metropolitan street car system. With plenty of cars and a seat for about everybody the conductor has need of no other method of signaling than a bell rope, while at the dawn of enlightened railroading in Chicago the passenger knows that when he pushes the button the conductor will do the rest.

RAILROADS AND RIVERS.

The railroads have refused to grant reduced rates to the deep waterway convention to be held at Memphis next month. This was not because they cannot afford the lower rate. They will lose business by refusing it. Delegations are arranging for steamboat passage from St. Louis at a rate only one-quarter of what they would pay if they went by rail.

It may be that the roads have refused to do anything for the delegates because they are not in sympathy with the objects of the convention. It is seldom that one hears a word from a railroad man in favor of the improvement of waterways. Mr. James J. Hill is about the only one who has ever said a good word for them. Railroad men are in favor of the improvement of harbors, but they would have the activity of the national government stop at the coast.

They do not approve of the betterment of the rivers, their old time rivals, which they have pretty effectually put out of business. But a point has been reached in the development of the country where there is room enough for both and need of both. The railroads are unable to handle satisfactorily all the freight handed them, and they make no promises of future ability. They ought to welcome the rivers and canals as useful auxiliaries that will take care of much of the slow and heavy freight.

It was impolitic on the part of the roads running to Memphis to show unfriendliness for a movement which will benefit the country and cannot harm them.

THE OPTIMISM OF RETAILERS.

Still another inquiry has been made to determine the feeling of the country relative to the continuance of prosperous conditions. This time a trade journal has made the canvass, sending a list of questions to many retail merchants throughout the several divisions of the union. The points covered were the crop prospects, the financial condition of the farmers, the demand for labor, the evidence of symptoms showing a decline in prosperity, and the relative size of the retailer's orders for goods as compared with those of the preceding year.

When the wide range of the canvass is taken into account the general result of the investigation may be considered a safe indication of actual conditions throughout the United States. The answers from 3,000 merchants tell the same story. There is prosperity everywhere, and no indications of a decline. The crops will be good, and where there is some falling off higher prices will even up the returns. The cry for additional labor comes from every side. The farmers are contented and prosperous, out of debt, and with money in bank. The merchants have bought on a generous scale, seeing no clouds to suggest a coming storm. In some states the general outlook is more favorable than it has ever been.

So far as the common people are concerned there is no indication of the pessimism which is reflected from Wall street or finds expression now and then from some disconsolate magnate at home or abroad. The country is prosperous. The retail merchants are looking forward to a satisfactory season. If prosperity is menaced, the people in every quarter seem to have failed to discover the fact.

GREATER NEED OF SEAMEN.

President Roosevelt set forth a moderate and judicious naval program in his last message. It was that the navy should be maintained at its present strength, "obsolete and outworn ships" being steadily replaced by new ones. He said he would like to have congress provide for the building each year of at least one first class battleship equal in size and speed to any that any nation is at the same time building.

The president's program is too modest for Chairman Foss of the house committee on naval affairs. He is for a material increase in the strength of the navy. He would have a fleet of sixteen first class battleships for each ocean. Then he thinks there would be adequate protection for the interests of the country. So he says the next congress should hasten to authorize the construction of four battleships.

If the president shall not change his mind there will be no American battleship fleet on the Atlantic next year. But there is no likelihood that American interests would suffer even if the fleet were to be on the other side of the continent longer than is now intended.

There is no popular demand for a material increase of the strength of the navy. The best of vessels built today would be "obsolete and outworn" a dozen years hence. Why, then, build many vessels today unless the need for them can be made clearly apparent? If it cannot be, their construction would be sheer extravagance.

The navy needs men at this moment more than it needs ships. There are not enough seamen to man the ships which are fit for service and which the navy department would like to see actively employed. It may be that the pay is not high enough for the kind of work required. Probably that is the chief reason for the scarcity of men.

It is said that congress is inclined to raise the pay. It ought to do that and see what effect it produces before authorizing in headlong haste the construction of a large number of battleships. It is true that those ships cannot be built in a day, but neither can crews be got together and made fit for duty in a day. No amount of warlike fervor will make up for the lack of experience.

If congress can make the service more attractive, so that there will be greater readiness to enlist and less eagerness to desert, the strength of the navy will be more effectively increased than by authorizing the construction of four battleships.

THE MEXICAN PLAN.

Mexico is preparing to celebrate in 1910 the centennial of its independence. The mention of the fact at once awakens thoughts of another centennial exposition. But the intensely practical present government of Mexico has hit upon a plan of celebration which is practical and which at the same time required a constructive imagination to conceive. The world is tired of expositions, and, although Mexico could show many novel and interesting things at an exposition, it would not pay in any way.

Instead of an exposition Mexico is to inaugurate a number of public improvements, national in extent and of far reaching value. Some 900 cities and towns are to start simultaneously public works of the kind most needed in each particular locality and costing on an average $100,000 each. The period between the present date and Sept. 16, 1910, will be used in collecting the funds and making all other necessary arrangements, so that when the word is given on the day of the centennial anniversary of the nation's independence all over the nation public works will be started whose benefits will last another hundred years.

The plan is worthy of the brain of President Diaz, whether he originated or indorsed it. The cooperation of the national government and the local governments will make this the most important event in Mexican history since independence was achieved. Instead of the centennial anniversary leaving nothing but pleasant memories and a big deficit, the effects will be felt and appreciated until the nation produces a greater man than Diaz, and that is an unlikely event.

TAKE MORE PRECAUTIONS.

Somebody blundered. That is perfectly clear, from the account of the accident on the Charleston and Mattoon interurban trolley line. The sacrifice of human life was needless. If there had been a proper degree of care on the part of the management of the road there would have been no collision at a curve, with its frightful toll of the dead. What makes the case worse is that it was a day of heavy travel, when people were in holiday mood on their way to the county fair, and when extra precautions should have been taken to protect the passengers from danger. A system of moving trains which would permit a freight car to smash into a train crowded with women and children under such conditions must be radically defective.

The truth is that the interurban lines have been extending their activities so rapidly that their managers have not taken time to plan measures to secure the safety of their patrons. The old fashioned habits of the city street lines have been continued where the city street has become the country road and miles have taken the place of short blocks. There has been delight in high speed along the highways. The liability of accident has greatly increased without a corresponding increase of watchfulness. Where cars run at a high speed on a single track the chances of accident are many.

In the handling of railroad trains experience led to the introduction of safeguard after safeguard for the benefit of patrons. A controlling train dispatcher, a system of telegraphic reports and orders, blocks of various sort, detailed schedules with time of arrival and departure clearly indicated, and watchful station agents and tower men combine to make travel safe. In the case of the interurban lines there has not been such care. Time cards indicate departure and arrival of cars at important points only. There are general directions for meeting and passing. At intervals there are telephones for the use of trainmen seeking information of the whereabouts of other cars. But there is a good deal of haphazard work connected with the running of cars on a single track, often with imperfectly ballasted roadbed and curving this way and that to follow the windings of the country road.

The accident in central Illinois brings home the necessity of closer supervision of this new method of travel which is becoming so popular everywhere. In the particular instance it may be possible to localize the blame. A single individual may have been grossly careless and inattentive to the message which meant safety. But such a result will not affect in the least the general situation, which is one which needs attention.

PRACTICAL CITY FARMING.

[From the Broadway Magazine.]

The problem of how best to interest the children of a big city after school hours has been solved by a New York woman. She has startled the city with a unique and ingenious plan, and despite objections more or less formidable has put her theory into practice and has achieved a notable success.

Mrs. Henry Parsons has always contended that if you give a child some individual work to do, and some work that will not only be fascinating but instructive, you have no need to worry about the long idle hours that "Satan finds some mischief for," as the old saw has it. Seeking around for some desirable work that would appeal to childhood she hit upon farming. She secured a small piece of ground between Fifty-second street and the Hudson river and invited the school children to come and learn how to be practical farmers. Each child was given a small plot and was supplied with farming implements.

The idea spread, and when the school farm opened the following year Mrs. Parsons was almost swamped by the crowd of eager applicants for admission. Then the city authorities took cognizance of the scheme and voted funds from the exchequer to help the good cause. When the farm was started there were only a few little toilers with hoe and spade—nowadays there are several hundred young folks of both sexes busy at the school farm from the close of school till sundown.

WHAT TRAMPS REALLY ARE.

[Broughton Brandenburg in the Metropolitan Magazine.]

Fully one-third of the tramps in this country are men of more than the average intelligence, and an equal number are tramps for only a small period of their lives. Also a large number of the years are tramps not because of preference for that style of life but because they are following the course of the least resistance, and as tramps are better able to escape the police, having a greater independence of movement and, being in a stated class of men that is generally suspected, are less open to individual suspicion.

Before passing to the concluding opinion of any length I will summarize in brief the expressions of a number of men whose experience should weigh much. When asked if crime paid they voiced themselves as follows: "Honesty is the best policy for a starving man," said one. "It depends on the man and his sporting propensities," said another. Warden McClaughry of Leavenworth: "Crime is a dreadful waste of public funds for correction, the time and property of robbed individuals, and the operating time and prison time and energies of the criminals." In this connection it is interesting to calculate that the 90,000 persons that make up the average prison population of this country at present if employed at the average wage rate in the classes of employment they profess, which I calculate at $534 per year, would earn the enormous sum of $47,700,000 per annum.

Engineers' Ethical Code.

[From the Century Magazine.]

One of the most gratifying incidents of the present era of ethical awakening in America was the recent agitation in favor of the adoption of an ethical code by the Institute of Electrical Engineers. It is true that at the recent annual meeting at Niagara the carefully prepared code, upon which a competent committee had unanimously agreed, met with delay, on mere grounds of technical procedure.

The postponement of consideration by no means, however, implies rejection of the measure, and the present authorities of the institute will doubtless carry the matter forward with all constitutional dispatch; for no member of this honorable profession, a profession yearly increasing in responsibility and importance, would be willing to go on record as permanently opposing so desirable a reform, and one which the press of the country has hailed with such cordial and significant approval.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

PRINCESS CLARA of Bavaria has at length succeeded in extorting from her uncle, the venerable regent, a reluctant consent to her entry of holy orders as a Benedictine nun, and she is about to take the veil in the Benedictine convent of Northwood, on the Isle of Wight, which has for its lady superior the widow of the late ex-King Miguel of Portugal, mother of Archduchess Maria Theresa of Austria, of the duke of Braganza, pretender to the throne of Portugal; of Duchess Charles Theodore of Bavaria, of the duchess of Parma, and of the grand duchess of Luxemburg.

Princess Clara is a handsome woman of 31, and her decision to withdraw from the world is the result of a disappointment in love. Six years ago the princess privately plighted her troth to Baron Cramer-Klett, the principal ironmaster of Bavaria and the richest man in the kingdom. His father was a self-made man of the most humble origin, who, beginning life as a newspaper reporter, had been created a baron by the late King Louis II. in recognition of his services to the industry and trade of the country.

Princess Clara's suitor, like his father before him, is a Protestant and a freemason. In spite of this, he, with the object of pleasing the princess and of reconciling her parents, her relatives, and, above all, the regent, to his suit, devoted immense sums of money to the purchase of old time abbeys and monasteries from lay owners. After having placed them in thorough repair he then restored them, free of cost, to the monastic orders to which they had originally belonged.

One of the most notable gifts of this kind was the purchase, restoration, and gift of the famous old abbey of Wessobrunn, near Wilhelm, to the Benedictine order, to whom it had formerly belonged. It is the oldest monastic building in all southern Germany, certain portions of it dating back to the eighth century, and it is estimated this gift alone cost the baron over 1,000,000 marks, while he probably gave as much more to the famous Benedictine monastery of Ettal.

Notwithstanding this liberality towards the Catholic church and towards its religious orders, which naturally assured him of their good will in his suit for the hand of the handsome young princess, the regent absolutely declined to give his consent, insisting that not alone did he object to any such mésalliance, but likewise he feared the strain of insanity in the blood of the baron. The latter's father died as a lunatic, and under restraint, his madness taking the form of a conviction that in spite of his fortune of $40,000,000 or more he was doomed to die of starvation.

In a way this fear was realized, since his death was caused by a cancer of the throat, which prevented him from taking any form of nourishment. Finally, the baron consoled himself three years ago by wedding young Baroness Wurtzburg, who is a Lutheran, like himself, and, consequently, all prospects of his becoming a convert to the Roman Catholic church, and his contributions to the latter, are at an end.

Princess Clara, who refused for his sake to consider an offer of marriage made by Prince Victor of Italy, count of Turin, has never got over the disappointment, has withdrawn for the last two years altogether from court life, and has devoted all her energies to obtaining leave of her uncle, the regent, to become a nun. This sanction she has finally obtained, and now that Archduchess Maria Beatrice of Austria, mother of the Spanish pretender, Don Carlos, is dead, she will enjoy the distinction of being the only princess of one of the reigning houses of Europe in holy orders. For the widow of ex-King Miguel of Portugal only became his wife after he had lost his throne, and was born as a member, not of a soverign family but of one of the mediatised houses of the nobility.

Among the sisters of Princess Clara of Bavaria is the duchess of Genoa, famous for her prowess as an athlete, for her exquisite complexion, and for her wonderful red hair, while her brother, Prince Louis Ferdinand, has achieved the same fame as a gynecologist as his cousin, Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria, has won as an oculist. Like the duke, he declines to take any payment for his medical services and in the same way that the duke can boast of having restored the sight to hosts of his countrymen by his over 5,000 successful operations for cataract, Prince Louis can claim to have, as surgeon accoucheur, brought more tiny Bavarians into the world than any other member of the Bavarian medical profession.

The regent of Bavaria has done wisely in allowing his niece to withdraw to a convent, in view of the danger of her mind becoming affected by melancholia. For her mother, the late Princess Amelia, died two years ago under the restraint to which she had been subjected in consequence of her extravagances and eccentricities, culminating in an extraordinary scene at the Munich opera, where the old lady insisted on sitting on the balustrade of the royal box, with her feet and skirts dangling over the heads of the audience below.

Bavaria's regent is strict and unyielding on the subject of mésalliances, and in spite of all the pleas of his close friend, Emperor Francis Joseph, and of his son and daughter-in-law, Prince and Princess Leopold, he has refused to allow their child, his granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria, to return to the kingdom, much less to appear at the court of Munich, since she made her runaway marriage with a penniless infantry officer of the name of Baron Seefrid.

Fortunately for the young princess her other grandfather, Emperor Francis Joseph, is more indulgent. For he has elevated the baron to the rank of count, has given him rank in the Austrian army, and has presented the princess with a large estate, besides settling upon her a handsome fortune. He is exceedingly kind to the young couple and has them often in his entourage.

King Edward has under consideration a scheme for the complete reorganization of the Royal College of Arms, with the object of abolishing a number of abuses, especially in connection with the matter of extortionate fees, and at the same time with the view to enlarging its functions and authority. The plan now before King Edward, and in the devising of which the duke of Norfolk, earl marshal of the realm, president of the College of Heralds and of the Court of Chivalry, has taken a prominent part, is to control in the future the use and misuse of titles, both in the peerage and in the baronetcy.

As matters stand people are permitted to adopt titles and to make use of them without any let or hindrance. Thus, there are several pseudo peers who have no right whatsoever to the nobiliary plumage with which they have adorned themselves, while there are scores upon scores of soidisant baronets whose only claim to the handle of their name is based on impudent usurpation.

Nor is there any control of courtesy titles, that is to say, of the titles borne by the eldest sons of earls, marquesses, and dukes, and by the younger sons and daughters of dukes and marquesses. In cases where there is an indirect descent of a marquisate or a dukedom the crown makes, by means of a decree published in the Official Gazette, a grant of the same honors and precedence to the younger brothers and sisters of the new peer as if their father had been in possession of the peerage.

But in instances of direct descent the crown plays no rôle in the grant of the honors to the children of the new peer. According to usage the eldest son of an earl, of a duke, or of a marquis should be known during the lifetime of his father by the latter's second title. But often the father insists upon his eldest son making use of one of his other titles; while in other cases, again, where there is no second title, such as in the instance of the Earl Temple, the eldest son has been in the habit of merely prefixing the word "lord" to his patronymic, and calling himself Lord Langton, a practice for which there is no authority whatsoever.

In olden times, in fact during the reign of the Stuarts, the officers of the College of Heralds, especially the kings at arms, were empowered "to control, reprove, and make infamous by proclamation all such as unlawfully and without just authority usurp or take to themselves any name or title of honor and dignity," and Charles I. even went so far as to order both the English and the Scotch privy councils to punish such offenders by means of heavy fine and imprisonment so that "others may be terrified from attempting the like."

These measures have, however, fallen into disuse, and no attempt is any longer made to enforce them.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

"THE GIRL RANGERS."

A Musical Comedy
BY
WILBUR D. NESBIT and LINCOLN J. CARTER.
With Musical Setting by Arthur Weld and Wallace Moody.

Presented in the Auditorium Theater by George W. Lederer's Company Sunday Evening, Sept. 1, 1907. The Cast:

Josephine Burnitt	Lillian Shaw
Josepheen Burnitt	Lillian Shaw
Upset Higgins	Wallace Moody
Hopeless Allen	J. A. Furey
Pete Rossmore	John Buany
Brad Bingley	Van Rensellaar Wheeler
Constance Penworthy	Grace Tyson
Cherry Clyde	Reine Davies
Little Feather	Marion Lorne
Jonathan Hollet	Rudolph Struck
Amos Clyde	J. A. Furey

The uses to which the Auditorium is being put recalls in a way those first days of its existence, when the glittering spectacle "America" used to pack it from pit to topmost gallery. To be sure, there are innumerable differences between that unforgotten show, which rejoiced the hearts of Chicago visitors of world's fair year, and "The Girl Rangers," which has been evolved from the combined wits of William D. Nesbit and Lincoln J. Carter, the musical talent of Arthur Weld and Wallace Moody, and the ingenuity of various craftsmen. But at least nothing could be more American.

A chorus of cowboys greets the audience as the curtain lifts; a group of young women touring the west, and the eight lovely equestrian daughters of Pete Rossmore supply the feminine contingent. Horses of great beauty and intelligence—knowing little "bronchos" and superb Kentucky bred creatures—play a conspicuous part.

At the climacteric moment an automobile races with a train. Add to all this a ranch cook, who is the most important person in sight; a lariat thrower who can rope anything he sees, a posse of would-be lynchers, a sorrowful Indian maid, a camera fiend, a female lawyer, and a group of postal "cardites" and you have a melange as American as possible.

There were, however, other characteristics yet more essentially American. The spontaneity of the fun, and now and then the biting flavor of it, were all quite indigenous. No audience but an American one could have caught the quips, interpreted the vernacular, or seen the meaning of the allusions.

There is a sort of plot, of course. It has to do with the financial wreckage of a boom town, and its absconding mayor and treasurer. Brad Bingley is the hero, who avenges himself and others for the losses incurred through the villainy of these two reprehensible ones—whose dark and cryptic character is at once made clear to the audience by the fact that they wore "store clothes."

Every one else is violently picturesque in contrast, and the costumer may be congratulated upon having produced a far west effect which cannot fail to satisfy.

The heroine is Cherry Clyde, who, in the person of Miss Reine Davies, makes her appearance mounted and surrounded by a bevy of equestriennes. To manage a mettlesome horse on a crowded stage and sing a solo at the same time is a good deal to ask of any one, and rather too much to demand of a slight girl. It had the effect last evening of throwing Miss Davies quite out of key and time, but she retrieved herself later when, under the guidance of Mr. Van Rensselaer Wheeler's fine baritone, she held her part in a really idyllic love scene.

Miss Lillian Shaw as the ranch cook, Josepheen Buritt, carried off the honors for character singing, and it is easy to predict her lasting popularity in the part. Mr. Wallace Moody's tenor made itself felt to the happiness of all who heard it, and Miss Grace Tyson's vivacious topical singing was finished and won favor.

As for the songs, they had, in several instances, qualities of real originality. "In Indiana," "Want to Send a Postcard Home," "Cherry Blossoms," "Down at Coney Isle," and "On the Trail to Santa Fé," not to mention a number of others, are songs certain to meet with favor. The melody of the cowboy's serenade and of some of the other love songs was admirable.

The exploits of Mr. Will Rogers, the rope thrower, were remarkable, and a distinct and consistent feature of the play.

It must be insisted that the scenery was unnecessarily crude. In these days of extraordinary scenic effects, it is strange that such bold settings should be offered to a public educated up to a high standard of esthetic excellence.

The machinery of such a production as "The Girl Rangers" is so complicated that it would be nothing less than miraculous if all went smoothly the first night. All things considered, the performance was excellent. The voices were good, the enthusiasm of the actors contagious, and the brightness of the lines and the songs undeniable.

THE LITTLE CHERUB.

A Musical Comedy in Three Acts.
BY
OWEN HALL and IVAN CARYLL.

Presented at the Illinois theater, Chicago, by Hattie Williams and her company, Sept. 1, 1907. The cast:

Earl of Sanctobury	Henry V. Donnelly
Lord Congress	Bertram Wallis
Algernon Southdown	James Blakeley
Shingle	Will West
Mr. Grimble	Charles Frischer
Sir John Monteith	H. F. Hendes
Miss Molly Montrose	Hattie Williams
Lady Mabel Congress	Corrine Francis
Lady Dorothy Congress	Mabel Hollins
Lady Agnes Congress	Winona Winter
Lady Rosa Congress	Lucy Monroe

One of those dainty, quietly amusing musical comedies which our British cousins send us from time to time is "The Little Cherub," which began a month's engagement at the Illinois theater last evening. Its fun is never on the boisterous order, and its situations never offend and over the entire entertainment is cast that air of refinement which is so frequently a minus quantity in the American made musical play.

Musically it is not so attractive as many of its predecessors and were it not for the original stage business introduced several of the numbers would fall short of the favor with which they were received last night. However, Manager Frohman wisely has done everything possible from the standpoint of production and stage management, with the result that "The Little Cherub" is sufficiently attractive to entertain and hold the interest of an audience.

The libretto was the last from the pen of the late Owen Hall, whose contributions included "Florodora" and "The School Girl." The threads of the plot are kept well in hand throughout the first and second acts, but so little remains to be accomplished after the second curtain has fallen that it may be said that the story ends there.

Miss Hattie Williams, whose advancement to stellar prominence is accomplished in "The Little Cherub," has in Molly a rôle which gives her less to do than usually falls to the lot of a star. However, she is dashing, fascinating and ingratiating. Her acting has gained in poise and bearing since the days when she first stepped out of a Rogers Brothers chorus. She sings effectively and occasioned considerable surprise by the imitative talent which she displayed in brief travesties on the acting of Maude Adams, Ethel Barrymore, and Rose Stahl.

The company engaged to surround Miss Williams is an unusually strong one and chief among the funmakers is James Blakeley, the English comedian. As Algy Southdown, he is jolly throughout, and his rendition of the "Little Willie Browne" song is irresistibly funny. He is indefatigable at all times, never obtrudes, and yet is never idle.

Henry V. Donnelly is capitally cast as the earl and renders Miss Williams splendid assistance in the imitation number. Will West supplies some unctuous comedy in the part of Shingle, the valet. Miss Francis, Miss Hollins, Miss Monroe, and Miss Winter are a quartet of charming little maidens. Miss Winter has a song in the last act which she sings engagingly and as an encore she did a bit of ventriloquism which made one of the most pronounced hits of the evening.

Fran Ludwig	Miss Harris

"The Marriage of William Ashe" had never been played in Chicago, for all of the popularity it had enjoyed elsewhere, until it found presentation Saturday evening at the Bush Temple theater, signalizing the opening of this pleasant north side playhouse.

There was not a vacant seat when the quite wonderful new red curtain went up, and the audience was of the friendliest character and had time to greet each member of the company as he or she came upon the stage, and to call and recall the actors. Its assurances of good will toward Adelaide Keim, the leading lady, did not stop with mere clamor, however. Bouquets, large and small, and all the colors of autumn, garlands and baskets, and one great set piece—a four leaved clover for the season's luck—were showered upon her.

The mood of both audience and players was leisurely and there was, apparently, a desire to establish good relations between these faithful habitués of a neighborhood theater and the actors who will, the winter through, provide them with amusement.

It was evident that Adelaide Keim satisfied the expectations of her audience. Her part, as dramatized, keeps excellently the spirit of the character as it was delineated in the novel, and it was to the credit of Miss Keim that she succeeded in sustaining the curious shiftiness of Kitty's temperament, and yet held the sympathy of the audience throughout. The force of her personality did this. Her vital, glowing qualities achieved what in the book was a thing of more difficult performance.

The keynote of the play may be said to have been Lady Kitty's pathetic but casual little remark:

"There is something wrong about me—there is a black drop in me somewhere."

Miss Keim held to this consistently and succeeded in maintaining an element of pathos even in her most insolent and exasperating moments. If at first the sudden transitions from one mood to another seemed almost too violent, they were, it appeared, justified at last by the lurking madness in the character.

Of course, Mrs. Ward's great story, rich with political and social interests, cannot but suffer in dramatization. The personages who in the novel appeared impressive and important sink in the play to the estate of mere foils, farcical in all their characteristics.

The audience is led to see them all through Kitty's eyes, and thus the sympathy for the part is maintained at the expense of fidelity to the real purpose of the play—or, rather, of the story as Mrs. Ward wrote it. The one part dominates all the rest, and England's prime minister, her home secretary, and her great ladies are made to seem merely absurd.

Edward B. Haas, who essayed, not without a good deal of dignity and aplomb, the part of William Ashe, succeded in conveying some idea of the real importance of the part, but he had to do this with rather meager and inadequate lines. Geoffrey Cliff, the Byronesque villain of the play, as played by Will D. Corbett, was fairly convincing. J. J. Fitz Simmons, who did the bright juvenile part of Eddie Helston, has an immense amount of spontaneity and it is easy to imagine that his touch and go qualities will win much favor this winter.

The company is, indeed, an interesting one, and if they yielded to the temptation to popularize "The Marriage of William Ashe" by making low comedy of it in scenes where comedy of a much more restrained and delicate order would have better met the idea of author and dramatist, they at least only did what ninety-nine out of a hundred would have done in the same circumstances.

Several parts quite lost their identity, as, for example, that of the modest and wistful Mary Lyster, who, in the play, and according to the interpretation of Gertrude Binley, is made to seem only a jealous spinster, capable of mean retaliations.

However, it is impossible to maintain in a play the complicated psychology of a great and elaborate novel of the modern type, and it can be truly said that if "The Marriage of William Ashe," as seen on the stage, is other than as compared with the written book, at least it is entertaining and gives a fine opportunity for the exploitation of one part—the part of the enchanting, foolish, fatal Lady Kitty. And this, let it be added, is quite safe in the hands of the leading lady at the Bush Temple theater.

Letters Show Mansfield Spirit.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Interesting letters written by Richard Mansfield to a Pittsburg man shortly after his last visit here and at the beginning of his illness were made public today. They are written to George Siebel, a newspaper man and magazine writer, who had defended Mansfield with his pen. One was written from Chicago and was as follows:

My Dear Siebel: I thank you for your most able and welcome defense of my offense. I knew that some barkeepers and their patrons like the old mouthing, hideous Richard. Well, nobody is obliged to come and see my Richard. There is nothing easier than to stay away. Perhaps these people do not realize that they get more from me for their money than they did or do from the old actor. I wonder why they don't see my hump. It is 6 inches thick, and I limp when I don't forget it. Imagine Anne at the bier of her murdered husband's father swiftly falling captive to the honeyed tongue of an ogre. The gloom here is frightful—the cold penetrating—it cuts the heart, and I am yours, depressed but grateful,

RICHARD MANSFIELD.

In another letter to Mr. Siebel Mr. Mansfield, after complimenting him on a recent magazine production, wrote:

I have been ill, barely able to do my work. Indeed, I have been suffering from nervous exhaustion for some time. When I am in this condition I always abuse Shakspeare (some men abuse the Deity), so you mustn't mind my outburst the other day. My bête noir is King Lear, because some one is always worrying me about that old lunatic. Like Uncle Dick's King Charles, I fear he will soon crop up in everything I say, do, or write. I am always truly yours,

RICHARD MANSFIELD.

Funeral to Be Held Today.

New London, Conn., Sept. 1.—The funeral of Richard Mansfield will be held at 12 o'clock tomorrow, the Rev. Alfred Poole Grant, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, conducting the services.

Bernhardt Writing New Play.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1907: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Sarah Bernhardt spent part of her vacation at her summer home on Belle Isle, Bay of Biscay, in writing a four act play to be produced next season at her own theater in Paris.

She says the success of her Adrienne Lecouvreur last season encouraged her to persevere in the path of dramatic authorship, especially as it would be a distinct waste of money to pay other people to write plays for her if she can supply them herself, with the additional advantage of avoiding friction between the author, manager, and star actress.

Bernhardt keeps her own counsel in regard to the nature of her latest achievement, which is strictly modern.

AIM TO DISSOLVE OIL TRUST

Government Will Push Efforts Against Standard.

AFTER BIG OFFICIALS, TOO.

Immunity Feature of Law Does Not Apply to Rogers, et al.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Successful in its anti-rebate prosecutions of the Standard Oil company, the United States government will renew more confidently than ever its efforts to force dissolutions of the trust. Out of the mouths of officials and employés the government proposes to establish the monopolistic character of corporations. This proof will be secured from more than fifty witnesses, who will be examined in New York beginning Wednesday next.

Tremendous though the blow struck by Judge Landis at the Standard, it is really the anti-trust proceedings upon which the government depends to destroy the monopoly and create a condition of fair competition. The policy to be pursued in the case has been framed with the utmost care, the intent being not merely to dissolve the trust but to institute criminal prosecutions of men "higher up," who will be proven guilty of willful violation of the law.

John D. Rockefeller and John D. Archbold are entitled to immunity through appearance in Judge Landis' court, but Henry M. Flagler, Charles Pratt, O. H. Payne, William Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers, and others have no claim to governmental consideration. Few, if any, of these men will be required to testify.

Will Put Burden on Magnates.

The government will rely upon subordinates to show conditions which exist and to make a chain which will convince an impartial jury that acts of minor officials really were initiated and directed by the oil magnates. The attendance of witnesses, of course, can be enforced by government prosecutors. It is also claimed here that witnesses can be compelled to give evidence, even if their testimony might tend to incriminate them. Under the law, however, such witnesses would be immune from punishment as to matters of which they should testify.

A nice point of distinction as to what witnesses may take advantage of immunity of law has been raised at the department of justice, and will likely be given careful thought, because of the large number of witnesses summoned by the government in the pending suit. The language of the statute, after declaring witnesses must testify, even if the evidence they give will incriminate them, goes on, "but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of immunity in the transaction, matter, or thing

THEIR FIRST CORN ROAST

Fresh Air Kiddie Was Horrified by Roasting "Ears."

IMAGINED CANNIBAL FEAST.

Tribune Summer Hospital a Heaven for the City Worn Youngsters.

Saturday evening was a joyful time at THE TRIBUNE'S summer hospital at Algonquin. It was the night of the corn roast.

To the biasé youngsters who live on the farms in the neighborhood of Algonquin all the year round a corn roast isn't much, but when you have lived on Jefferson street, or up in the crowded northwest side all your life, and never saw a real, growing tree until this summer, a corn roast is an experience to be marked with a white stone.

When Miss Holmes, who superintends the hospital work on behalf of the bureau of charities, suggested the affair, every one looked blank. Then Miss Holmes took an impromptu census and found, by actual count, just one boy to whom the idea of a corn roast suggested something. He was a little Italian.

"A-ah!" he exclaimed, delightedly. "Sure! Make-a da white string! I see him by da mission! Sure! Vera good!"

Miss Holmes looked discouraged and assured Rafael—"Raffy," they call him—that she wasn't going to string popcorn, showed the children where to build a big bonfire, and sent Brundage, the general utility man at the hospital, to a neighboring farm house after roasting ears. Brundage brought two big sacks.

Pitiful Ignorance of Little Ones.

Miss Holmes had some marshmallows and by the time the corn was piled up properly in the embers and the children had learned how to toast marshmallows without burning off their fingers, every one was in a most uproarious good humor. Then the corn was pulled out.

"Here, dearie, take this ear!" said Miss Copeland, thoughtlessly, to a 10 year old girl.

The child gave her a horrified look and shook her head. Then Miss Copeland understood, and had to explain patiently that it wasn't a cannibal feast and that the steaming, good to eat thing she held in her hand was, through the perversity of the English language, called an "ear." Then the child tried to bite off the end of the cob.

"It was pitiful," said Miss Copeland afterward, "but, truly, it was awfully funny! I simply had to stuff my handkerchief in my mouth and get away as quickly as I could."

Picturesque Night Gathering.

The fire was built in a hollow surrounded on three sides by a grassy slope, which formed a natural amphitheater. Here, after everything had been eaten up, the hospital graphophone was brought, the children—and the mothers, too—grouped themselves around it, and strange sounds began to drift out through the black shadows among the trees and across the river to the houses on the other side.

"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" was the favorite. It was sung again and again, with "Cheer Up, Mary," running a close second. It wasn't artistic, but it was genuine.

"And when they started off for bed," said Miss Holmes, "I heard one little girl turn to her small brother with a sigh and say: 'Gee! It's like heaven, ain't it?' Poor youngsters!"

THOUSANDS SEE PRETTY BABIES

Gladys Baker Decided Most Beautiful Child at Riverview and Gaylord Oehme Fattest.

The baby show being held for the benefit of the Chicago Maternity hospital, 533 Wells street, drew immense crowds to Riverview park yesterday. Two contests will be decided every day this week. From 100 to 300 babies will be shown at each contest. Next Saturday night the champions will meet in a final sweepstakes.

The first prize for the prettiest baby yesterday went to a little girl, Gladys Lenore Baker, 697 Fletcher street; second to Vernice Helms, 3009 Princeton avenue; third to Lucile Heeg, 958 Madison street; fourth to Warren Spurny Wilcox, 56 Lincoln Park boulevard. For Each Woman, According to Her Needs.

IN THE SHOPS

White Gloves Lose Popularity.

The white glove rapidly is losing its popularity, and in its place are the pale gray and biscuit suedes, which are extremely becoming to the hand. The white gloves never will go out entirely, however, and they are now, on account of the lowered price, quite within reach of the woman of moderate means.

Eight Compartment Handbag.

One of the most novel handbags seen this season, although of ordinary size, about 7x4 inches, and one inch thick, has eight compartments. These compartments, instead of being all of the same depth, graduate from an inch and a half in the front to three and a half inches in the back. The principal advantage of this graduation is that the compartments are more easily reached than they would be if they were all the same depth. This feature appeals strongly to methodical women, who like to classify and segregate the different items they keep in their bags. The bag is of the back strap variety and has a gold plated fastener and contains celluloid and engagement tablet, accompanied by a gold pencil. The compartments are lined with calfskin and the change compartment, which has a gilt frame, is lined with suede. The bag is no heavier than the ordinary variety with only two or three compartments.

"Fu Ju" Brooch.

A brooch which is unique, called "Fu Ju," is worn by the Chinese as a charm for long life, happiness, and success. "Fu Ju" has been worn and worshiped by the Chinese people for nearly 4,000 years, and is implicitly believed in by them. The men wear these pins on their caps and the women wear them in a number of ways, usually as brooches and as pendants on chains. They are being imported for American wear in brooches, scarf pins, pendants, and hat pins, and will probably prove extremely popular, judging from the present vogue of Chinese articles.

In the BOUDOIR

Treatment of Fainting.

Fainting proceeds from different causes, the commonest being a disturbance in the circulation of the blood in the brain. For an ordinary fainting spell lay the patient flat. Great harm has resulted often from the treatment by ignorant people in trying to make the patient sit up or propping up the head with pillows. To send the blood back from the heart to the brain the flat posture absolutely is necessary. Let the patient lie so the feet are higher than the head; throw open the clothes about the chest and throat; sponge the face with cold water, and give some cold water to drink.

Power of Dimples.

Dimples have been called the imprint of Cupid's fingers, and it is unquestioned that the girl who possesses them has an attractive power. The mischievous dimple appears and vanishes as the lights and shadows of various emotions flit across the face; there is no telling whither it goes or whence it comes, and its uncertainty has a peculiar effect on every male observer. He at once is attracted, and is on the outlook for everything else that is lovable about the owner of the dimple. It almost is impossible to imagine the owner of a dimple is ever angry or sad. She may scowl and look depressed, but out comes the little dimple to give the lie to every serious emotion. You take it as indisputable, though you may be far wrong, that the girl with the dimple is light hearted and humorous, and to one endowed with these qualities you are only too willing to lose your heart.

In the SEWING ROOM

Scarf from Handkerchiefs.

A dainty scarf for a bureau is composed of three fine lawn handkerchiefs joined by a strip of lace insertion. It is finished by a ruffle of lace at both ends. Under this is a pad made of dainty colored silk or satin, which is filled with a sheet of cotton batting, scented with sachet powder. A more economical way would be to make the top of the pad of silk and the underneath of some cheaper material. Muslin would be practical and would lend body to it. A monogram embroidered in the corner of an end would be dainty and pretty.

Linen Collars.

The summer girl who looks into the future will begin to embroider the linen or pique collar and cuff sets which she expects to wear with her cloth suits. If she is skillful at this work she will be the owner of a fine set at a small cost. She will have the material and design exactly to her own fancy, a thing which is impossible when one purchases the sets which are sold in the stores.

* *

Protect Your Thumb.

To protect the thumb in sewing paste a piece of court plaster over the end just below the nail. I have found this useful in fancy work especially.

Ready Made Collar Bands.

In making men's shirts it is much more satisfactory to use the ready made bands for the neck. You then may be sure that this shirt band will fit under the collar. These bands may be obtained at the laundry.

Umbrella Underskirts.

Fine circular ruffles for petticoats can be made from umbrella and parasol covers. They are especially useful when repairing a petticoat or making one from a dress skirt. Fold the cover in half without ripping the seams; pin together carefully and trim off the points. Cut ruffles the desired width; hem them and put on the skirt without any gathering. Two narrow ruffles or one wide one can be made from one umbrella cover.

With the Girl Workers

Advice from an Actress.

Many well born and supposedly well bred girls are going on the stage, it is true, but the out-of-date word "temptation" has a capable substitute in some of the "modern philosophy," that is going with them. Bernard Shaw too often is their religion.

If any girl works hard it is the ambitious actress, but it is the example of some of the women, rather than the temptations of the men, that are the greatest danger to the weak girl. Superior birth and advantages, to say nothing of better clothes, are acknowledged everywhere, and when a girl secure in all these boldly lives her modern philosophy, with an unavowed adoration of Camille working overtime somewhere in the back of her head, then may heaven help the shopgirl. She imitates the "lady" from her shoestrings to her philosophy.

One college girl, who is succeeding splendidly on the stage, boastfully does things that would disgrace a chambermaid. Another girl, beautiful and charming, from one of the intellectual and aristocratic families of America, has calmly gone to such lengths that not one shred of respectability clings to her. It is useless to talk to these girls, but may the former chambermaids and waitresses and shopgirls who are now on the stage have the courage to assert their own best qualities in spite of this tempting example. They should look rather to the truly professional women who meet the world with kindness and courtesy, but who do not risk the bare semblance of indiscretion. Conventionality should be a woman's first religion.

How a Cattle Queen Began.

A few years ago a woman in Texas was almost penniless, a babe in her arms, her husband killed in a "roundup" of cattle, and only enough money on hand to bury him, but she had unlimited courage as well as an end in view. The cowboys bought her a pony, a tent, and an outfit, and she took up a homestead, borrowed money to get started, picked up a few cheap cattle, for of necessity she had to start in a meager way. In about ten years she became known as a "cattle queen," and today is one of the Texas millionaires. She says any woman can do as much and more by using her mind instead of letting herself in the drudgeries of domesticity.

Girls Need to Get Busy.

That the majority of girls employed are performing their duties faithfully and well, I think, no careful observer can deny, while, on the other hand, a much too large proportion of them decidedly need to "get busy."

It is safe to say that girls who have no interest in their work beyond the drawing of their salaries never will rise rapidly in the business world. There are no promotions ahead for the drones.

In a certain book store there may be found a young woman of supposedly average knowledge of literature, who appears to be interested in the art of embroidery, to the exclusion of selling books, for which she was originally employed. Whenever an imposing public disturbs her favorite occupation she comes forward with a most wearied air, while utter indifference marks her attitude. She knows nothing of books beyond a few late novels of the frivolous type, and she will state calmly that well known classics never have been written or are not now in print.

HINTS for ENTERTAINMENTS

Cotton Anniversary Party.

A young bride, who was renowned for her original and novel ways of entertaining, wished to have a week end party on the first anniversary of her wedding day.

She wrote little notes, which did not mention that the party was in honor of her anniversary, and wrapped them in thin sheets of cotton and then placed them in the envelopes. On the wedding day at dinner she decorated the dining room in white, using cotton in every possible manner. The place cards were fluffy cotton wigs with cards attached on which were written the names. The wigs were donned and much amusement and fun was made by the ludicrous appearance of the wearers. Little bales of cotton can be bought down south that would make fine favors.

* *

Fad Party.

A fad party affords a novel entertainment. At a recent gathering of this nature each guest was requested to wear an emblem of his or her particular fad, and to leave, as a memento of the occasion, his autograph and a pen and ink sketch of the chosen fad in a blank book designed for the purpose. Among the novelties worn representing the various fads were a miniature bicycle, a tiny tennis racquet, a baseball bat, a golf stick, a small canoe, foreign stamps, a curious poster, a paint brush and palette, a miniature guitar, and a small rake, hoe, and shovel.

Prizes were awarded for the most effective sketch and for the poorest one.

In the Laundry

Soak Handkerchiefs.

Badly soiled handkerchiefs can be cleaned readily by dissolving one heaping tablespoonful of borax in boiling water. Cool to blood heat with cold water, in which soak handkerchiefs half an hour, stirring and lifting occasionally. Then wash in ordinary way.

* *

To Wash Feather Boa.

Put a little cloudy ammonia in a little warm water and place the boa in it, then sprinkle with a little powdered soap. Shake it well and it will look like new. This does not apply to boas made of ostrich feathers.

* *

To Wash Sheer Handerchiefs.

Here is a way to clean sheer handkerchiefs without wear. With several pieces of soft old linen cover a smooth board, tacking the linen tightly. Tack the handkerchief on this with brass tacks or pins. If the handkerchief is lace edged, pin out the lace points with tiny pins. Dab the handkerchief with a piece of absorbent cotton dipped in lukewarm white soap suds, barely touching the lace parts, but still leaving them partly damp. After this is done set the board in the sunshine and as soon as it is dry spray it with clear water from an atomizer. It must not get too wet, or the lace will thicken. Then wipe over with clean, dry cotton and place in the sun. If the handkerchief is yellow or exceedingly soiled it may require a third wetting. Otherwise, when it dries the second time, leave it in the sun for another hour; then remove from the board, fold, and put away.

Set Colors to Wash Goods.

If fabrics are green add vinegar to the water; if lilac or pink, a little ammonia. Salt will set the color of black and white muslin.

How to Polish Stoves.

Use boiled linseed oil on the steel parts, rubbing on with woolen cloth. Clean nickel with whiting and ammonia and good stove polish for the top.

* *

Keep Stockings from Shrinking.

Take a new stocking and from it draw a pattern on a piece of paper. Then have a couple of thin boards cut the size of the pattern. When the stockings are washed draw them over the boards to dry and they always will be as large as when they came from the store.

* *

Pipe Clay for Washing.

If pipe clay is dissolved in the water, the linen is cleaned thoroughly with half the labor and a saving of one-fourth of soap, and the clothes will be improved in color as if bleached. The pipe clay softens the hardest water. Use 1 cent's worth to four gallons of water.

To Soften Child's Shoes.

When the children's shoes have become hardened by water, kerosene rubbed into them with a soft flannel rag will render them as pliable as when new.

Removes Candle Grease.

To remove candle grease from a garment place a piece of blotting paper over the spot and one under, and press with a moderately hot iron, moving the paper frequently to present a fresh surface.

* *

Use Papers When Sweeping.

When sweeping carpets use newspapers which have been thoroughly wetted and wrung nearly dry. The paper collects the dust and does not soil the carpet. A carpet, particularly a dark colored one, often looks dusty when it does not need sweeping. Wipe the dust from the carpet with a sponge wrung out of water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

* *

To Remove Splinters.

Splinters may be removed by pouring hot water in a wide mouthed bottle and then holding firmly against the flesh where the splinter is. The steam soon will remove it.

IN THE KITCHEN

Rest in the Kitchen.

A kitchen should contain a comfortable lounge. Not a couch, but an old fashioned lounge, the mattress and pillows with washable covers. It is known that lying down in an easy position will rest one more in five minutes than sitting in a chair will in half an hour. By having the lounge in the kitchen the tired housewife often can take a few minutes' rest which she would not or could not take if she had to go to the couch in the sitting room.

TESTED RECIPES

Savory Pork Cutlet.

Cut two pounds of fresh pork loin into flat pieces. In a deep dish make a marinade of a tablespoonful of vinegar, a little chopped tarragon, a clove of garlic, and a chopped green pepper, with seeds removed. Lay the pork in this two hours; then boil and serve on hill of potatoes. This was used in the south "befo' de wah."

Quick Orange Icing.

Pulverized sugar, moistened with the grated rind and juice of an orange, and spread while soft, is a fine icing for plain cake and requires no cooking. Put in a cool place to harden.

H. L. NAGLES.

* *

Spanish Oysters.

Heat two tablespoons butter, mince an onion and cook until soft. Slice three or four tomatoes and a little parsley and cook all together until done. Then add a pint of oysters, liquor and all; season highly with red pepper and salt. Just let it come to a boil after oysters are added, and you have an oyster novelty.

MRS. M. RUIZ.

* *

Foreign Salad.

Dice fine a few stalks of celery. Dice an equal amount of apple. Mix with mayonnaise and sprinkle with shredded almonds. This salad is pretty served in an orange from which the skin has been removed and every division of the orange separated at the top until they will bend back far enough to form a cuplike receptacle.

MRS. SARA JOHNSON.

* *

Curled Celery.

If celery is cleaned and little cuts made in the sides, then laid in cold water a few hours before using, it will be found to curl like radishes when cut like roses. It looks better than when served in straight pieces.

Raspberry Tapioca.

To two cups of raspberry juice add one-half cup of currant jucie; add sugar to sweeten, and when beginning to boil add a quarter of a cup of minute tapioca. When it becomes transparent remove from fire and partly cool; then add the beaten white of an egg. Place on ice to chill and serve with whipped cream.

MRS. C. STEPHENSON.

Egg Economy.

Add to the white of one egg an equal amount of water and a pinch of salt. Beat all until stiff and you have an amount equal to three whites beaten. For meringue add gradually one small cup of granulated sugar and flavor with vanilla.

"A Stitch in Time Saves Nine."

This is an old saw, but it never was any truer than in our own day of electric conveniences in the home. Take for instance the sewing machine motor. How it lessens the labor of sewing and protects many a frail woman from the strain of pedaling for hours. Getting one of these inexpensive and easily operated motors in time may be the means of avoiding nervous breakdowns from that so frequent source of them—the overworked sewing machine. For further particulars about the sewing machine motor call Main 1280, or address the Chicago Edison Company and Commonwealth Electric Company, 139 Adams Street.

British Columbia Amalgamated Coal at 7½c per share.

This company controls over 17,000 acres of valuable coal land, situated in the well known Nicola Valley, about 180 miles from the city of Vancouver, British Columbia, and, according to experts' report, this area is underlaid with inexhaustible quantities of high class bituminous coal; the best for steam, blacksmithing, cooking, and in fact for all purposes where coal is required. It is estimated to contain approximately 1,400,000,000 tons of coal.

We have only 10,000 shares that we will sell in blocks of 100 or over at 7½c per share.

If you are interested we advise you to write or wire at once, stating the number of shares you wish reserved, then remit us by bank draft or express order. We will have the stock transferred into your own name or whatever name you desire. Write for our booklet giving full particulars about the Nicola Coal district.
